

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Looking to partner up with field service business professional for my tech startup

Vishnu™ - September 1, 2024, 10:16 am

Hii all!

I am a software engineer building my own tech startup in field service industry - (<https://workview.io>)

I have been working on this from last 8-10 months as a solo founder with my full time job and got the MVP ready (more than MVP tbh)

I am from India but my target market is field service businesses in USA and selling is difficult for me, I am looking to partner up with anyone who can help me get leads, i am willing to do 60-40 split in revenue for the leads you bring. you taking 60% of revenue for the customers lifetime.

If things workout well in long term. I would love to onboard you as a co-founder.

If you are into lawn care, HVAC, power washing type of business (if you have sales background and good network that's a plus) you are perfect fit.

I am competing with players like Jobber and Housecall Pro which make millions in revenue. so the product has good potential in 2-5 years down the line.

Right now i don't have any revenue, but i was able to talk to few customers and they were interested in product and gave me few requirements which i am working on simultaneously.

Motivation behind building this was that i checked out knowify, Jobber, Yardbook and they had pretty outdated UI (not with jobber but i felt the ux with jobber could be better) and there were alot of businesses who had very bad lead generation forms and 2000s styled landing page.

Reason i posted here instead of partnership is people won't check there and i feel it's more of opportunity of someone just hanging out in the lounge.

If you are interested hmu

bull- - September 9, 2024, 9:04 am

Hey man. Do you need any development help?

PM me anyways, we can work something out for sure.