Thread: Magic: The Gathering - Any HF Players Out There?

Blockonome - September 24, 2024, 3:46 am

Hey HF,

Used to play a lot of Yugioh and Hearthstone, but found both of them boring in the end.

Recently started playing Magic: The Gathering and I cannot understand why I did not try this game before.

Anyone here on HF paying MTG?

TooBurnt - September 24, 2024, 4:36 am you playing online or the actual cards?

Only playing Online Standard at the moment!

I used to play a ton of MTG years ago with a group of friends. We had a night dedicated to it every week. I ran a zombie deck and an eldrazi deck back in the day.

I miss it for sure.

Used to play a lot. Specially during Covid-19 lockdown days. It is a hell of a game and very addictive. I remember I was at a decent rank at one point. It is one of those games that will continue to come back to. But right now I do not have time or mood to delve into it.

Takes ages to find a deck you like to play, while also being a good deck to beat others. Constantly have to tweak mine, as I am so new to the game.

Blue decks I disliked the most.

Oh yes. I play Arena and occasionally (but rarely) in person. Build yourself a historic deck and hit me up sometime. We'll play.

I still kinda play often with my friends IRL but I couldn't get into the game tbh. There's nothing like opening a fresh pack of cards ?

Played the card game at one point in time.

Haven't play the "video game."

Do you have any Standard deck? I will look into a good history deck and see what I can build.

I don't think any of my decks are standard at the moment unfortunately. Time is a bitch. You can get much more creative with historic though so it's worth the effort.

Out of all of the card games I played growing up, MTG was always the one I came back to. I feel like a big part of that is probably given the more mature nature of the game in terms rules, understanding cards, card design, and some other things. So as you get older, you can understand and appreciate all of it more.

I got into MTG late like I don't understand why I avoided the card game for years. It's pretty interesting playing Commander I did try standard on the app but local shops have events so whenever I have time I drop by and get destroyed go home and try to figure out what I need to build better deck lol.

What is commander style? Because this is what they have most events of near me.

So in a short an sweet explanation it's the most popular way of playing MTG. So you take a legendary creature and you build a deck around them specific to the colors of your hero as well as you can not use duplicates of the same cards when building the deck. What I would recommend you is go to a local store and you can pick up a prebuilt Commander deck that will have all the cards you need to start playing. Currently we are on Duskmourn (horror themed) or you can also find Boomburrow (cute animal themed) these two will have prebuilt decks that you play with instantly with friends or others that have a prebuilt deck.

Thank you very much, I will have a look at it!

So is this like Brawl in the online version of the game?

So if you are playing arena all of those are standard. There is no commander available for Magic the Gathering Arena. I am not sure if there ever will be but in Arena there is only standard sadly.
