Thread: Controller or Keyboard + Mouse?

Charlie Sheen - October 1, 2024, 3:58 pm

Which do you prefer playing on? Controller or Keyboard and Mouse. I have to play on controller, I'm wildly inaccurate with the mouse and always pressing the wrong keys on the keyboard.

I am a controller/console player through and through. My friends all play keyboard + mouse, (they're pretty good too), but in a 1v1, I still usually destroy them. I know keyboard + mouse players have an advantage, but for me, I just play way better on controller.

Yeah especially in a game like COD it's just unfair. Controller wrecks them. Aim assist has gotten so OP.

That's so true. It's not just aim assist either, I just play better on console. I've tried keyboard + mouse a few times, but it's always felt odd and unnatural to me, and I play terribly on it.

Series X is a pretty nice console, heard it runs almost anything really smoothly. I still play on the Xbox One, but I've not had too many issues with it, so I haven't switched to the latest gen yet.

Usually controller for FPS games like Call of Duty, but Mouse + Keyboard for other games.

I love mine. I got mine as a impulse buy years ago. Never have any issues with it. I still have my old Xbox One but I haven't fired it up in so long. I do notice a HUGE graphics difference when I do.

Yeah, graphics improvements are probably pretty noticeable between the two gens. The Series X supports ray-tracing on some games too, but I don't really have a need for that. Sure, ray-tracing looks cool and all, but I'm still able to play the game with pretty decent graphics settings.

jcole - October 1, 2024, 4:18 pm

I used to play console when I was younger, but always loved PC. I played my parents computer for years, but at 16 got my own and never went back to console. I have consoles, but rarely ever play them.

plops - October 1, 2024, 4:19 pm

This sounds ridiculous, but after I swtiched to a keyboard and mouse I have problems with a controller. I just feel like I have more control and flexibility without it. I even grew up on the og xbox -> 360 -> XB1.

There's so many buttons that control everything f1 f2 f3 asdw space bar, all kinds of stuff and then you're trying to aim and fire are the same time.
