

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Cure cancer or solve world hunger?

Purgatory - October 1, 2024, 9:29 pm

This is a bit of a tricky one. If anyone here has played Saints Row IV this was a question you get asked when you become the president. I feel like solving world hunger could be done while curing cancer. As my favorite comedian says "come where the fucking food is" - Sam Kinison.

oRequiem - October 1, 2024, 9:41 pm

Not a tricky one in my opinion. 100% cure cancer. It's honestly insane that there still isn't a cure to any of these cancers (that we know of publicly at least).

Fish - October 1, 2024, 9:43 pm

Very good question! I would say cancer would be my priority.

Purgatory - October 1, 2024, 9:43 pm

(Oct 1, 2024 09:41 PM)oRequiem Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Not a tricky one in my opinion. 100% cure cancer. It's honestly insane that there still isn't a cure to any of these cancers (that we know of publicly at least).

Yeah, part of me wants to say they're using the cure for the elites and shit. Part of me wants to say we will never have or find a cure. Part of me has hope.

oRequiem - October 1, 2024, 9:44 pm

(Oct 1, 2024 09:43 PM)Purgatory Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yeah, part of me wants to say they're using the cure for the elites and shit. Part of me wants to say we will never have or find a cure. Part of me has hope.

I believe there's something hidden behind the scenes personally.

Purgatory - October 1, 2024, 9:44 pm

(Oct 1, 2024 09:43 PM)Fish Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Very good question! I would say cancer would be my priority.

If you had to pick a particular kind of cancer, what would you pick?

(Oct 1, 2024 09:44 PM)oRequiem Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I believe there's something hidden behind the scenes personally.

That's fair and I agree. I question everything and am always wondering

7 - October 1, 2024, 9:46 pm

Well I dont know really.

To make the body replace a dead cell by generating a new fresh living cell would also solve death as a whole.

Solving world hunger, thas a growing problem which cannot be fixed humainly, I mean castration is an option but i guess future progressions of variations of Covid-19 Style cleanouts will benefit the supply and demand issue.

Fish - October 1, 2024, 9:48 pm

(Oct 1, 2024 09:46 PM)X-DB Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Well I dont know really.

To make the body replace a dead cell by generating a new fresh living cell would also solve death as a whole.

Solving world hunger, that's a growing problem which cannot be fixed humanly, I mean castration is an option but I guess future progressions of variations of Covid-19 style cleanouts will benefit the supply and demand issue.

I agree with that as well. Our body technically replaces dead cells all the time, doesn't it?

That is definitely an interesting approach to solving world hunger... Some people say COVID was designed to kill off a chunk of the population to help with some of these issues, right?

7 - October 1, 2024, 9:50 pm

(Oct 1, 2024 09:48 PM)Fish Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I agree with that as well. Our body technically replaces dead cells all the time, doesn't it?

That is definitely an interesting approach to solving world hunger... Some people say COVID was designed to kill off a chunk of the population to help with some of these issues, right?

Yes this is true but if the cells stop communicating it creates deadzones.. if cell regeneration was accelerated immortality would be a possibility and thus also increasing the issue of world hunger.

Purgatory - October 1, 2024, 9:51 pm

(Oct 1, 2024 09:46 PM)X-DB Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Well I don't know really.

To make the body replace a dead cell by generating a new fresh living cell would also solve death as a whole.

Solving world hunger, that's a growing problem which cannot be fixed humanly, I mean castration is an option but I guess future progressions of variations of Covid-19 style cleanouts will benefit the supply and demand issue.

That is a really intelligent response and one that I wasn't expecting to be honest. I believe that if there was a cure it wouldn't allow the body itself to repair dead cells. I think it would be some man-made implemented instrument that would do the work itself in some way. I also don't believe it would have the capacity to rebuild all of the body's cells as they are all different types and cancer alone would be difficult as hell. World hunger I can understand.

Genuinely I do agree with Sam Kinison, instead of sending out large amounts of food to these people; why not relocate them elsewhere where they have the opportunity and the environment allows them to grow and eat prosperously.

7 - October 1, 2024, 9:53 pm

(Oct 1, 2024 09:51 PM)Purgatory Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That is a really intelligent response and one that I wasn't expecting to be honest. I believe that if there was a cure it wouldn't allow the body itself to repair dead cells. I think it would be some man-made implemented instrument that would do the work itself in some way. I also don't believe it would have the capacity to rebuild all of the body's cells as they are all different types and cancer alone would be difficult as hell. World hunger I can understand.

Genuinely I do agree with Sam Kinison, instead of sending out large amounts of food to these people; why not relocate them elsewhere where they have the opportunity and the environment allows them to grow and eat prosperously.

Yes, my father used to watch the news about a man who walked everyday 15 miles just for water.. he used to say, why doesn't he just fucking move home.

Purgatory - October 1, 2024, 9:54 pm

(Oct 1, 2024 09:53 PM)X-DB Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yes, my father used to watch the news about a man who walked everyday 15 miles just for water.. he used to say, why doesnt he just fucking move home. LMAO it is just true, a lot of problems would be solved

Fish - October 1, 2024, 10:02 pm

(Oct 1, 2024 09:54 PM)Purgatory Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) LMAO it is just true, a lot of problems would be solved

Can solve a lot of problems that way, but at the same time there can be many other obstacles in the way to solving it through that route.

Purgatory - October 1, 2024, 10:06 pm

(Oct 1, 2024 10:02 PM)Fish Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Can solve a lot of problems that way, but at the same time there can be many other obstacles in the way to solving it through that route.

What might those obstacles be though? I can't think of any off the top of my head

Fish - October 1, 2024, 10:08 pm

(Oct 1, 2024 10:06 PM)Purgatory Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) What might those obstacles be though? I can't think of any off the top of my head

What if he home has a history in the guys family and it has sentimental value? or what if its close to his work/familys work etc. Or what if its in a protected area vs out and exposed. Or what if there are utilities where it is right now, but none by the water? Really depends on the situation. i feel like you'd need more info

Deany - October 1, 2024, 10:12 pm

Shiet idk mane both are really bad

Purgatory - October 1, 2024, 10:13 pm

(Oct 1, 2024 10:12 PM)Deany Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Shiet idk mane both are really bad Lmfao fair enough man; take a nappy nap.

edgyseptic - October 2, 2024, 7:52 am

(Oct 1, 2024 09:29 PM)Purgatory Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) This is a bit of a tricky one. If anyone here has played Saints Row IV this was a question you get asked when you become the president. I feel like solving world hunger could be done while curing cancer. As my favorite comedian says "come where the fucking food is" - Sam Kinison.

probably world hunger because there are so many types of cancer out there so it's guaranteed that there's different cures for all of them. i think all the countries that have tons and tons of food should send some to the countries that need it.

for the u.s., i think they should just lower the cost of food (groceries and hot food) so people don't have to be on food stamps and other food related benefits.

DashPHP - October 2, 2024, 8:11 am

I would solve Cancer. Cancer is taking away really good people.

Goods - October 2, 2024, 8:32 am

(Oct 1, 2024 09:29 PM)Purgatory Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) This is a bit of a tricky one. If anyone here has played Saints Row IV this was a question you get asked when you become the president. I feel like solving world hunger could be done while curing cancer. As my favorite comedian says "come where the fucking food is" - Sam Kinison.

That's actually a pretty good question. I feel like if you cure cancer then you're saving humanity for the ongoing future. If you chose to solve world hunger, I feel like some places could still manage to get back to a point where they still had no food. I'd choose to cure cancer.

Purgatory - October 2, 2024, 8:33 am

(Oct 2, 2024 08:11 AM)DashPHP Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I would solve Cancer. Cancer is taking away really good people.

It seriously is

DashPHP - October 2, 2024, 8:34 am

(Oct 2, 2024 08:33 AM)Purgatory Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It seriously is Yeah man. Wouldn't wana feed a serial offender when we can cure Cancer and save those who are/have created positive impacts in this world.

DemonAsylum - October 2, 2024, 8:35 am

(Oct 2, 2024 08:11 AM)DashPHP Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I would solve Cancer. Cancer is taking away really good people.

Good people as in like capable people? Is the hope that such people could help solve the other issues in the world or something?

DashPHP - October 2, 2024, 8:37 am

(Oct 2, 2024 08:35 AM)DemonAsylum Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Good people as in like capable people? Is the hope that such people could help solve the other issues in the world or something?

Not necessarily, but I think so actually.

I don't think solving world hunger is a productive move. UNLESS we can educate them on top of solving world hunger.

Purgatory - October 2, 2024, 8:41 am

(Oct 2, 2024 08:37 AM)DashPHP Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Not necessarily, but I think so actually.

I don't think solving world hunger is a productive move. UNLESS we can educate them on top of solving world hunger.

Yeah, I feel like the victims of world hunger may be the dumbest.

DemonAsylum - October 2, 2024, 8:41 am

(Oct 2, 2024 08:37 AM)DashPHP Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Not necessarily, but I think so actually.

I don't think solving world hunger is a productive move. UNLESS we can educate them on top of solving world hunger.

It's tough with questions like this because on the surface it seems like an easy answer, but imagine if you snap your fingers and it actually happened. What all connected to that occurs or changes as well? I guess it's not meant to get super deep about haha, but it's certainly possible to REALLY get into it.

DashPHP - October 2, 2024, 8:42 am

(Oct 2, 2024 08:41 AM)Purgatory Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yeah, I feel like the victims of world hunger may be the dumbest.

My thoughts exactly Imfao xd

Purgatory - October 2, 2024, 8:43 am

(Oct 2, 2024 08:41 AM)DemonAsylum Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It's tough with questions like this because on the surface it seems like an easy answer, but imagine if you snap your fingers and it actually happened. What all connected to that occurs or changes as well? I guess it's not meant to get super deep about haha, but it's certainly possible to REALLY get into it.

It can be super deep, I mean most people don't think about it and just pick whatever but there are strings attached and consequences to everything

DemonAsylum - October 2, 2024, 8:45 am

(Oct 2, 2024 08:43 AM)Purgatory Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It can be super deep, I mean most people don't think about it and just pick whatever but there are strings attached and consequences to everything Big facts. It just makes me think of all of the times we've seen in a show or movie where a genie grants a wish, but it's never quite what was bargained for ?

Purgatory - October 2, 2024, 8:47 am

(Oct 2, 2024 08:45 AM)DemonAsylum Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Big facts. It just makes me think of all of the times we've seen in a show or movie where a genie grants a wish, but it's never quite what was bargained for ?

Lmfao this exactly.

HOMODIN - October 2, 2024, 8:47 am

(Oct 1, 2024 09:41 PM)oRequiem Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Not a tricky one in my opinion. 100% cure cancer. It's honestly insane that there still isn't a cure to any of these cancers (that we know of publicly at least).

Oh but what if there already is a cure but it's just not published or anything because of the money that 'they' get from "trying to find a cure for cancer". The plot thickens...

My vote goes to cure cancer because the food thingu, well, instead of sending money to the places that needs food, well, what if we would send people and gear and stuff to help them make food with so that they can become independant. Might be a unpopular opinion but that's the super short version on my thoughts. Sure, there's political stuff, unstable locations etc, all that has to be take care of too obviously.

Kaleb - October 2, 2024, 8:52 am

Its an interesting question because initially I say cure cancer, because as far as I know food insecurity isn't even close to the a leading cause of death worldwide, where-as cancer is up there on that list. But the further we increase our lifespan the larger our population will become and the more food we'll need so in a sense curing cancer would make world hunger worse.

I think I'd still go cure cancer ultimately.

Purgatory - October 2, 2024, 8:53 am

(Oct 2, 2024 08:52 AM)Kaleb Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Its an interesting question because initially I say cure cancer, because as far as I know food insecurity isn't even close to the a leading cause of death worldwide, where-as cancer is up there on that list. But the further we increase our lifespan the larger our population will become and the more food we'll need so in a sense curing cancer would make world hunger worse.

I think I'd still go cure cancer ultimately.

That is also a point I never thought about honestly. It seems like a catch 22 to me tbh

Kaleb - October 2, 2024, 9:05 am

(Oct 1, 2024 09:41 PM)oRequiem Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Not a tricky one in my opinion. 100% cure cancer. It's honestly insane that there still isn't a cure to any of these cancers (that we know of publicly at least).

There's been an incredible amount of progress in treating certain cancers. It's just as I'm sure you know we use cancer as a blanket term for what's really a variety of different situations, all similar sure (cells dividing without control or reason and spreading) but you're going to have to have very specific ideas of how you treat that/target that depending on where it originates from, how aggressive it is, what the effects are of having the cells dividing where they are in your body.

I'd honestly gladly take my chances with a number of specific cancer diagnosis' then I would dementia or alzheimers.

Mr_Kh4os - October 2, 2024, 9:20 am

(Oct 1, 2024 09:44 PM)Purgatory Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) If you had to pick a particular kind of cancer, what would you pick?

That's fair and I agree. I question everything and am always wondering
Same I agree with a lot of your views.

Purgatory - October 2, 2024, 11:37 am

(Oct 2, 2024 09:05 AM)Kaleb Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) There's been an incredible amount of progress in treating certain cancers. It's just as I'm sure you know we use cancer as a blanket term for what's really a variety of different situations, all similar sure (cells dividing without control or reason and spreading) but you're going to have to have very specific ideas of how you treat that/target that depending on where it originates from, how aggressive it is, what the effects are of having the cells dividing where they are in your body.

I'd honestly gladly take my chances with a number of specific cancer diagnosis' then I would dementia or alzheimers.

Really? I mean, over dementia or alzheimers. That shit would be fun man, seriously haha

Kaleb - October 2, 2024, 11:46 am

(Oct 2, 2024 11:37 AM)Purgatory Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Really? I mean, over dementia or alzheimers. That shit would be fun man, seriously haha

Dementia and Alzheimer's is terrifying, and there's really no great treatments. Once you know you have it its pretty much just a matter of time. Albeit early detection can lead to much longer quality of life, my grandma was diagnosed about ten years ago and its not until the past 3-4 years that she's really been having trouble remembering things, recognizing me, etc. I just wonder what's even going on in her mind, or if "she's" even there anymore. Its such an awful disease.

I wonder if her "souls" there you know but like, trapped behind this cognitive inability, or if whatever her conscious experience was prior to this is gone and she's essentially just a human shell operating on instinct. God forbid her conscious is there but trapped behind some sort of hellacious inability to understand what's going on around her, I just really can't picture it, its difficult to picture, I don't ever want to live like that, it's a fear of mine as it runs in the family.

Often times she'll just talk in loops, saying the same thing every 30 seconds, for me it's usually about how tall I've gotten. Or how the weather is.

I'd much much rather be diagnosed with testicular cancer than I would dementia or Alzheimer's, 95% survival rate, and probably even higher in the states. Literally slowly losing my mind? Being unable to recognize those around me? Not being able to remember what my home is or where I am? That sounds horrifying. And again I just really, part of me I guess hopes that the real "her" isn't even there anymore, because if it is I know its trapped behind an absolute flood of confusion, anxiety, probably depression.

Purgatory - October 2, 2024, 11:49 am

(Oct 2, 2024 11:46 AM)Kaleb Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Dementia and Alzheimer's is terrifying, and there's really no great treatments. Once you know you have it its pretty much just a matter of time. Albeit early detection can lead to much longer quality of life, my grandma was diagnosed about ten years ago and its not until the past 3-4 years that she's really been having trouble remembering things, recognizing me, etc. I just wonder what's even going on in her mind, or if "she's" even there anymore. Its such an awful disease.

I wonder if her "souls" there you know but like, trapped behind this cognitive inability, or if whatever her conscious experience was prior to this is gone and she's essentially just a human shell operating on instinct. God forbid her conscious is there but trapped behind some sort of hellacious inability to understand what's going on around her, I just really can't picture it, its difficult to picture, I don't ever want to live like that, it's a fear of mine as it runs in the family.

Often times she'll just talk in loops, saying the same thing every 30 seconds, for me it's usually about how tall I've gotten. Or how the weather is.

I'd much much rather be diagnosed with testicular cancer than I would dementia or Alzheimer's, 95% survival rate, and probably even higher in the states. Literally slowly losing my mind? Being unable to recognize those around me? Not being able to remember what my home is or where I am? That sounds horrifying. And again I just really, part of me I guess hopes that the real "her" isn't even there anymore, because if it is I know its trapped behind an absolute flood of confusion, anxiety, probably depression.

Well, of course the knowing that you are pretty much done for is not the most pleasant but imagine the fucking crazy trips these people get when they forget that their purse is in the microwave. My guy, must be some next level remembering haha

123browser - October 2, 2024, 12:41 pm

Cancer. I won't explain. I'd rather just answer haha sharn - October 2, 2024, 2:23 pm

It is hard to choose one.

Solving world hunger would save millions from starvation.

Purgatory - October 2, 2024, 2:28 pm

(Oct 2, 2024 02:23 PM)sharn Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It is hard to choose one.

Solving world hunger would save millions from starvation.

Curing cancer would only cause more people to starve tho

Zalbai - October 3, 2024, 6:24 am

As long as darkhearted people are in power, there will continue to be hunger and cancer.

Jamika - October 3, 2024, 6:35 am

(Oct 1, 2024 09:29 PM)Purgatory Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) This is a bit of a tricky one. If anyone here has played Saints Row IV this was a question you get asked when you become the president. I feel like solving world hunger could be done while curing cancer. As my favorite comedian says "come where the fucking food is" - Sam Kinison.

Solve hunger ofc, i care for cancer patient but alot die because of hungre

Mementobroski - October 9, 2024, 5:05 am

Definitely world hunger! We will all die a day but dying because of hunger is a death way more awful than cancer

Chrome - October 9, 2024, 6:01 am

I would say cure cancer. It's something that will affect my family rather than world hunger. Might be a dick thing to say but humans are selfish beings.

Yin Yang - October 9, 2024, 6:12 am

Cancer is mutations so world hunger

Jinu - October 9, 2024, 6:15 am

That's definitely a tough choice, both are life-altering problems for millions of people. Curing cancer would save countless lives and improve the quality of life for so many, but solving world hunger could impact even more people globally by addressing a basic human need. Hunger not only affects health but also economic and social stability. While curing cancer would target a specific illness, solving hunger could potentially lead to broader benefits across societies. Ideally, we wouldn't have to choose between them, but if I had to pick, solving world hunger might have the most immediate global impact. What about you?

Yanix - October 9, 2024, 6:17 am

That's a really tough decision! Each issue holds significant weight.

For me. my choice would be solving world hunger because addressing that could empower communities and foster long-term health and stability.

Jake Johnson - October 19, 2024, 4:26 pm

I don't even have to think on this one. I would instantly cure cancer if I could. Still is crazy that there are no cures yet.

F4tDoinkz - October 19, 2024, 4:28 pm

Cancer has affected my family so I would choose that for sure.

DanielZ - October 19, 2024, 7:55 pm

Difficult question, I'd choose to solve world hunger. It affects more people daily and could improve global health and stability on a massive scale.

honeyslife - October 21, 2024, 9:59 am

Cure cancer, I genuinely have no clue how curing world hunger is possible so

Morphh - October 21, 2024, 10:15 am

Definitely not hard, cure cancer.

plops - October 21, 2024, 10:17 am

Cancer for sure. Lost my father to it and only took 3 months after discovery and continuous treatments to take him.

Its a sad disease that should have been fixed by now imo

Blockonome - October 21, 2024, 10:45 am

Both of them would have serious consequences. We are already too many people on the planet. It would be great to cure either, but I am not sure it would be good for us as a society.