CyTube is a web application providing media synchronization, chat, and more for an arbitrary number of channels.

I can add MP4 movies to the playlist, we can all chat and watch synchronized video in real time.

You can sign up (username and password required but no email) or use a guest login (any not taken username and nothing else required) to chat.

That's pretty cool, no copyright issues with it?

Streaming, downloading, or sharing unauthorized content is a crime. It's a felony to illegally stream copyrighted material for commercial gain or private financial gain.

Luckily none of you are streaming it, and nobody has anything to gain. ?

Viewing said content and chatting about it is perfectly legal.

I respond and act in response to copyright takedown requests, so does, the host itself (cytube) and my own file host.
