

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: security cameras in your house

plops - October 3, 2024, 11:30 am

I have friends who have security cameras in main areas like living room, facing front door, maybe their kids room.

I find this to be pretty unsettling.

I have all four corners of my exterior covered plus the door. But the inside was never even a thought, especially my kids room.

Maybe im just paranoid.

Deany - October 3, 2024, 11:31 am

Ya idk about that, they can get hacked easily.

ahw9n2io8wd9h - October 3, 2024, 11:38 am

Depends on your surrounding environment.

Makes sense if you're living in an unsafe area, or have people who visit that you don't trust.

plops - October 3, 2024, 11:51 am

(Oct 3, 2024 11:35 AM)- Sam - Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Many people choose to install indoor security cameras as an additional measure to protect a property. There's nothing wrong with it.

Maybe theres some extra precautionary measure i am missing. But ive seen so much on exploits and places that sell access to hacked cameras.

It's made me not feel safe about it, but again i am sure there are measures not being taken like im proper setup/install.

Omniscient - October 3, 2024, 12:06 pm

I agree with plops that having internal cameras especially ones hooked up to the internet is very troubling.

DashPHP - October 3, 2024, 12:07 pm

Yeah absolutely will cause some paranoia. If I were to do it it would be based on a private network

Seaking - October 3, 2024, 12:15 pm

I've got tons of cameras, and about 3 indoor ones. One for the garage, another for the living room, and another for the basement door. They are isolated on an IOT network along with downtime enabled on my network itself so they do NOT run while I'm at home. They basically kick on when im sleeping and when im out at work.

sharn - October 3, 2024, 12:15 pm

I don't feel comfortable having cameras inside, so I only have one outside.

DramaKing - October 3, 2024, 3:07 pm

(Oct 3, 2024 11:30 AM)Robert Walker Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I have friends who have security cameras in main areas like living room, facing front door, maybe their kids room.

I find this to be pretty unsettling.

I have all four corners of my exterior covered plus the door. But the inside was never even a thought, especially my kids room.

Maybe im just paranoid.

Never had kids that you wanted to monitor? Yeah, I've heard creepy stories of camera accounts that supposedly were hit by credential stuffing. You do want to be careful.

plops - October 3, 2024, 3:36 pm

(Oct 3, 2024 03:07 PM)DramaKing Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Never had kids that you wanted to monitor? Yeah, I've heard creepy stories of camera accounts that supposedly were hit by credential stuffing. You do want to be careful.

We used a baby monitor that had no internet or wifi connection when they had cribs.

After graduating to a regular bed I took it out. As they have gotten older, knowing that you have some sort of privacy is important. Theres no reason for me to keep tabs on them with a camera in their room. There is one outside, perpendicular to the windows to monitor that though.

Charlie Sheen - October 3, 2024, 4:54 pm

I used to, I need to install them again. Right now I have an Amazon Astro and he rolls around patrolling the area.

Mooooookie - October 4, 2024, 3:50 am

I don't have any security cameras inside my house, as the only people I let in here are people that I trust.. but I do have multiple security cameras outside of my house, as nowadays can never be too safe.. plus they're priced cheap enough nowadays, that everyone should have cameras outside their house.

Snowwy - October 4, 2024, 9:05 am

Indoors, fuck no.

Outdoors, yes definitely.

sthmsfts - October 4, 2024, 1:30 pm

I would never have them inside the house, I'd just feel watched all the time.

Jamika - October 4, 2024, 5:41 pm

(Oct 3, 2024 11:30 AM)Robert Walker Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I have friends who have security cameras in main areas like living room, facing front door, maybe their kids room.

I find this to be pretty unsettling.

I have all four corners of my exterior covered plus the door. But the inside was never even a thought, especially my kids room.

Maybe im just paranoid.

My sister has one outside, my father in law has 4, agree there must only be outside, what is important to be watched in home?

Confound - October 4, 2024, 5:52 pm

I live in an apt building so i have nothing personally, but my landlord has out of the building and in every floor. it's a small building though most of which are his family members in units, so it's very safe.

Snowwy - October 4, 2024, 7:32 pm

(Oct 4, 2024 05:52 PM)Confound Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I live in an apt building so i have nothing personally, but my landlord has out of the building and in every floor. it's a small building though most of which are his family members in units, so it's very safe.

Always good to have outdoor cameras for sure.

Aeowulf - October 4, 2024, 8:14 pm

I do not, and will not, have any inside the house. I do have a few outside the house.

Cap - October 4, 2024, 8:15 pm

I have an outdoor camera pointed towards our walkway. I never thought having indoor cameras was a good idea.

Jinu - October 4, 2024, 10:39 pm

I totally understand where you're coming from. Having cameras inside, especially in personal spaces like a kids' room, feels a bit intrusive to me too. I prefer sticking to exterior cameras for security. I guess it depends on what gives people peace of mind, but for me, privacy inside the home is important. Do you ever feel like exterior cameras alone are enough for security?

plops - October 4, 2024, 10:56 pm

(Oct 4, 2024 07:32 PM)Snowwy Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Always good to have outdoor cameras for sure.

I agree. All four corners plus the front door.

Snowwy - October 4, 2024, 11:52 pm

(Oct 4, 2024 10:56 PM)Robert Walker Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I agree. All four corners plus the front door.

That's what I've got.