Thread: Mentors separated in convo

jcole - October 3, 2024, 5:00 pm

I was looking at convo when @rionxee@ was in there and noticed he was still under the L33T category. Do you think it would be appropriate to put the Mentor user group separated from others?

Mentors aren't special and they aren't staff, why do they need to be separate?

I was thinking it would be easier for other members to identify them in the chat in the event that someone would need assistance in anyway

Because Mentors are the first point of contact for the general HF and it would be hard to find an online mentor in the pile of Naches.

They have zero Convo permissions. That's what chat mods are for.

I wasn't referring to separating them based off of unique permissions, but more so like Dash referred to as members being able to identify them in chat versus others

Gay idea these losers don't need their own category

I like the idea of this, right above Ub3r.

Why would they need something separate lol, they have a subforum or probs have their own secret convo, you don't know them.

I think you misunderstood brother, jcole, or at least I was saying in convo on the right hand side it would be nice to see Mentors separate from the regular l33t/ub3r list. Just as Admin/Staff/Mods are.

Mentors probably do have their own SF, but that is something else entirely and not what we, or I, am taking about.

I will not be doing this yet.
