Thread: Whats a mystery or unsolved case that fascinates you?

Prawnster - October 4, 2024, 12:55 am

I've been watching a lot of murder documentaries with my Mrs and she loves them and finds them super interesting to watch.

Some of them are wild, do you have any favourites?

Ahhh yeah, the Cecil Hotel is such a strange one, it's crazy that we'll probably never know completely what happened :O

The Ray Rivera case I think, I hate watching unsolved though because I want to KNOW. xD

Yin Yang - October 4, 2024, 4:42 pm

Zodiac killer, I guess?

Ray Rivera, a spooky unsolved case! Do you think it was a suicide or something else?

Another unsolved, very old case! Have you read much into it or just seen it on documentaries etc?

Yoooo this one is crazy. Some of the hotel footage is freaky as fuck. People drinking that water and stuff. I watched the Netflix show about it a while back and have seen some youtubers go over it as well. It was the first thing I thought of when I saw this thread.

Another unsolved, very old case! Have you read much into it or just seen it on documentaries etc? I think someone murdered him for sure, but the question always is how did he get into that position on the roof? I always wonder about that.

I'm really fascinated by the mystery of the Dyatlov Pass incident. It's such a strange and eerie case with so many unanswered questions about what really happened to those hikers. Every theory, from natural disasters to more bizarre explanations, makes it even more intriguing. Have you come across that one?

Yeah these sorta situations normally bring up all sorts of questions that we'll probably never have the answers to :'(

Yup! I think they recently found the sub and they said it imploded which is what they predicted

Pretty sure they're back at it again

Really? Honestly, that doesn't surprise me... They should be on the show 1000 ways to die.

Side note - does that show still exist? lmao

Hahaha not sure if that still exists.

But yeah think he was going about in his megayatch and died or some shit I dont remember but thats 2-0 in the battle of ocean vs billionaire hahaha
