

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Whats One Skill You Wish You Had Learned Earlier in Life?

Jinu - October 6, 2024, 12:31 am

Looking back, is there a skill or hobby you wish you had picked up sooner? Whether it's a technical skill, something creative, or even a life lesson, share what you wish you had learned earlier and how it would have impacted your life. Let's inspire each other to pick up new skills today.

Bastille - October 6, 2024, 12:35 am

IT, hacking, coding, and stuff. I went back to school at age 24 to study IT, I wish I dove into this field younger such as 12 years old, however better late than never as we say !

RangoWorld - October 6, 2024, 12:36 am

Sales. I still suck at it and I wish I had learnt that skill. It's incredibly useful. As I realize now.

DashPHP - October 6, 2024, 12:39 am

English speaking. Lived in an English speaking country all my life but I have crap vocabulary which I want to improve a lot.

Jamika - October 6, 2024, 1:10 am

(Oct 6, 2024 12:31 AM)Jinu Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Looking back, is there a skill or hobby you wish you had picked up sooner? Whether it's a technical skill, something creative, or even a life lesson, share what you wish you had learned earlier and how it would have impacted your life. Let's inspire each other to pick up new skills today.

Your family is the only thing u need to fight for, hope i knew this fact alot earlier

WingRust - October 6, 2024, 3:39 am

Hacking for me too, I used to play with script kiddie stuff like back orifice, I wonder how many people here are old enough to remember that? I worked for a massive printer company where I wrote software that allowed computers to talk to peripherals in a really obscure programming language called ESC/P2 and I used to build computers as a sideline, then I would install the Trojan on them so I could fuck with people for my own amusement or until they just had to call me to have a look, that was awesome fun and sometimes very lucrative, mo money bitches. Then shit got in the way as it does and I went down a path of destruction where I was no use to man or beast. So yeah hacking, making up for it now though...

Mooooookie - October 6, 2024, 4:59 am

The skill I am thinking about it, isn't one that I wish I had.. but once that I wish I would of continued building on. I've always been into computers my whole life, since I was in middle school. I started learning programming when I was young.. and continued learning it up until high school. Unfortunately, that's where it stopped. I got into internet marketing really heavy during high school. and didn't continue to pursue learning coding. If I would have continued, it would of been really helpful to me right now. The way things are right now, when I get things coded for me... I'm able to read and understand the code to whatever they developed for me, but not the knowledge to build it from scratch myself.

SuseGD - October 6, 2024, 3:12 pm

Mine would probably be just branching out and exploring new and interesting topics in computer science. It's a main part of my life now, and if I had started looking into it earlier, I might have gone a different route in my life.

Confound - October 6, 2024, 3:35 pm

Wish I knew how to program and write code. That would be nice.

Yin Yang - October 6, 2024, 3:36 pm

I wish I had picked up learning a musical instrument sooner. Like a guitar or drumset

LeetSpeed - October 6, 2024, 3:36 pm

Figuring out weather a person is deceitful or not.