I once fell asleep in an elevator! I woke up several floors from where I intended ?.

What is the weirdest place you have accidentally fallen asleep?

plops - October 20, 2024, 6:39 am

Snuck out as a teen once, couldnt get back into my house. Slept in the woods behind the house against a tree.

LOL! Falling asleep in an elevator must have been a surprise when you woke up on the wrong floor! As for me, the weirdest place I've accidentally fallen asleep was on a bus, but not just in my seat - I ended up slouched against the window with my face pressed up awkwardly! :DDD

I don't really know if I have any weird places I've fallen asleep. I guess most weird would be one of the first times I hung out with my crush years ago I was so tired from working 15 hours I just kept falling asleep in her car. Luckily she understood because she was a coworker of mine and knew how hard I worked but looking back it that it could have been very awkward.

I was in the valley (city) and got drunk, passed out outside of the train station.

That sounds like a wild night. Did you manage to get back home safely?

Yeah mate. I passed out at like 2am and woke up at about 6. I thought I was on another planet when I woke up haha. Very confused.

Nothing wrong with a good car nap ?! Did you at least wake up before the end of lunch?

I don't really know if this counts as "sleeping". But I fell asleep for a brief moment while standing up one time. It was at the end of a three-day music festival. Even had a basket of cheese fries in my hand. Briefly fell asleep but caught myself about halfway to the ground and was able to get to the ground without hurting myself, lol.

I haven't really fallen asleep anywhere too odd, actually. Probably the only thing I can think of was when I accidentally fell asleep on a bus, but even that wasn't too bad either.

Morphh - October 20, 2024, 1:07 pm

I'm boring never slept anywhere weird, for me the weirdest would be on my friends living room floor. Never fell asleep in public or anyplace that is not a "home"

Fell asleep in a car at a traffic stop.

Fortunately I hit the truck in front of me before the lights turned green, was safe and just got a dent on my hood.

How do you fall asleep in an elevator? hahaha hmm not too weird but maybe falling asleep in class was the weirdest place for me

In college, during undergrad I was in another city for a music festival and it was a very large music festival that still occurs today. I was staying at my friends place and in an area of the city that is adjacent to the University and exclusively college kids.

After a very very long hot day at the festival and seeing Justice close out the Saturday night I found my way back to the building and got inside and took the elevator up. Walked into the apartment and passed out in the living room on the coffee table.

Well, turns out it was not my friends apartment after all. I was on the floor below. No one locks their doors and the layout was the exact same. I was woke up by the girls that live there at 3 am and I felt awful....physically because of how hot it was that day and how much I was drinking but also that I passed out on a strangers coffee table.

No harm done though, super understanding and I found my way back up. Still, the weirdest situation since I had been asleep there for at least 3 hours.

Went to a music festival years ago. Was a camp out hippy type of festival over the course of 4 days. Popular in the area. It was the first time me and my friends decided to do something like this. We were young and ill prepared for this even after planning it out. We all went together in one fucked up car. 2 of them had some type of issue and had to go grab something. We were far from home. They never came back.

Anyways, me and my boy who stayed had the tent and everything but we got so fucked up we never found a spot and actually set it up. Sorry we found the spot but we never set up the tent. We partied. The spot was ass because we were late but that was okay we found good friends. Anyways me and him tripped balls all fucking day and when night time came we had to sleep on top of the un set up tent. Out in the open. I bet we looked like fucking idiots lol.

Sorry for story time I am a bit high.

I've fell asleep at a red light.

Waking up was pure luck, I made it home safely shortly after.
