Thread: Have you experienced any space events?

Eran - October 21, 2024, 1:24 am

By space events I mean, a rare comet, meteor shower, aurora or any other space events, or did you maybe capture a cool space picture?

I will be getting into astrophotography after I take care of more important things soon that require money, but the thought of this new hobby excites me!

Personally I haven't experienced anything amazing. Maybe 15 years ago as a kid if I recall correctly there were some satellites being sent into the atmosphere and I could see it from my building, but that's about it.

DashPHP - October 21, 2024, 2:03 am

I have no idea what I saw still to this day...

I was out in my local park years ago, late at night. Me and my friend, both just smokin on a joint.

I look up and coincidentally there is a bright light that is moving AT SPEAD. No sound, no exhaust fumes. Must be a satellite. Felt very alien like.

bronzegods - October 21, 2024, 2:06 am

Yes I have seen a shooting star, its rare to see it here because of the pollution.

Chrome - October 21, 2024, 2:06 am

I played Halo, does that count? Only thing I have experience is eclipse

I don't think I've seen any of that... maybe just a comet falling here or there. I apologize, I don't mean to be discouraging, but I haven't seen any of these things before.

thrutl - October 21, 2024, 5:49 am not since I got back from my Apollo 11 mission, badumtsss.

I have seen plenty on the night sky, mostly comets and satellites.

But one time I saw green flashing orbs in a cloud of what looked like wierd structures or something, which really freaked me and my friends out... However a few years later I learned that these where actually lightning bolts, a very rare kind of lightning bolts, that dont go to the ground but rather stay in the atmosphere and are like balls of lightning.

They are called Sprites and ball lightning. You should check it out, they are pretty darn cool :D

Cooligan - October 21, 2024, 5:51 am

The closest I ever get to these is something like the Hunter's Moon from the other night. That was cool to see.

It legit lit up the entire sky at one point, far more than usual of course.

Jinu - October 21, 2024, 9:06 am

I haven't experienced any major space events either, but I'd love to witness a meteor shower or see the Northern Lights one day.

Jake Johnson - October 21, 2024, 9:30 am

I haven't experienced any space events myself. Well, the eclipse this past spring it got a little dark here during the day but nothing crazy.

I don't think it was a satellite, most likely a shooting star. Lucky and wholesome moment with a joint though

Full and huge moon nights are such a vibe, cloudy or not.

We got our whole lives ahead of ourselves, I am definitely going for it one day!

Plenty of opportunities still, maybe you can follow space event dates in your area?

Now why did you make my day more melancholic than it is :(
Smoking weed while doing some light work rn but need to find me a girl soon.

Doesn't always have to be "your girl" my man, can always just be that one chill girl you know who's down for anything as long as it's fun type of personality.

Yeah no worries brother I get it. My reply wasn't meant to be serious. I'm just not interested and don't have the time for any girl right now, despite wanting to occasionally.

I don't really have the time either, but I force myself to make it.

I'm the type of person who doesn't like being alone, I'm a very social person irl. So during downtime, even if I'm just at home relaxing, I'll often have a girl over or something just to hangout with and shit. Chill females just make the vibe "cozier" if that makes sense lol.

Yeah I totally get you, that's the kind of situation I imagine will be in a few years time. Not right now though, finances are tough and lots of self work to be done first.

Mr_Kh4os - October 24, 2024, 7:59 am

I've gazed at stars and other things but never anything too exciting unfortunately.

You said it brother, self improvement & realization is the most important part. Until you know who you truly are, you won't function at your fullest potential.

Nice man!

I saw part of it, but not the whole thing as I didn't have the special glasses you need to protect your eyes.

Definitely. I am discovering myself every day, and until I get some financial gain I won't try spending time on a girl. Gotta stay focused ?

I've seen many meteor showers. They're absolutely beautiful to watch. There was a meteor shower here about two nights ago. 20 comets per hour

How's the situation like in Canada, stuff like that is easily visible?

Well, in Toronto not so much. But the more in the "country" parts of Ontario, they're extremely visible. The light pollution often blocks us from seeing it Light pollution sucks, can't wait to hunt low LP areas, roadtrip and try to take some astro pics.

Yeah man they'll weigh you down too, especially if you're not in a stable spot yourself.

I've watched a lot of my friends go from a state of success to a state of misery due to bad relationships.

Yup, people are too afraid to be alone, face their thoughts and spend a few introspective months alone.

I have one friend who is literally doing no self work, lazy, fat, he goes to a job he hates, comes back home to play video games. Dude's still one obsession is getting a girlfriend. I can't understand it.

That's gonna be amazing bro! My best friend lives in butt fuck nowhere, New Brunswick and when we went there, there was a meteor shower going on as well! We just planted some camping chairs in the driveway and watched the comets for a few hours. It was beautiful

Pikachu - October 24, 2024, 10:41 am

I've seen meteor showers, never seen a comet. Missed every Aurora opportunity that's hit FL, that last one just so happened to occur during the hurricane so our skies were covered in clouds.

I have seen Jupiter and it's moons through a telescope and a nebula.

Ah man I know someone on Discord that's exactly like this. Like to a T.

He constantly complains about not having a girl, not having happiness, yet does jack shit to improve any of it because he's set his mindset in stone that "no females like me, UK girls are gross anyway, I'm so lonely" even after many of us have given him loads of advice. He just doesn't do anything with it and proceeds to complain more.

sharn - October 28, 2024, 1:54 am

I remember watching a total eclipse with special glasses.
It was amazing.

Funny enough after I read this post last night I did indeed up star gazing after smoking.
