My favorite online store is Amazon.

They have everything I need and the Prime shipping is so convenient.

What is your favorite online shopping site?

Target for sure, mainly because I have a red card and cc so stacking the savings and free shipping is nice. Also hate Amazon so whenever it can be avoided XD.

AliExpress is my go to for car parts, every aftermarket mod you find is basically a dropship from AliBaba/AliExpress but with a couple hundred dollars markup.

Amazon, for ease and the refund process is really simple when needed.

Amazon left a sour taste in my mouth a while back. I had purchased several movies on my account and regularly used my account to order things, lots of orders over the account lifetime.

One day they decided that my account was sketchy or something and closed my account. I had never done a chargeback, never did anything I would consider sketchy, I don't think I ever even returned something, my account was also secure afaik, I was never one to use simple passwords, and I never used someone else's credit card. They just closed it.

I called them many times trying to get my account reinstated, but they wouldn't do it and wouldn't tell me why my account was closed. They said I could create a new account with the same email, but my old account would remain locked. I asked about the videos from my old account and they basically told me "too bad, you're fucked."

I eventually made a new Amazon account, but I rarely use it because of how I was treated.

Target is probably my go-to now.

I've been avoiding online shopping tbh. I used to use Amazon a lot but their service is so shit now. All the top items on search are Chinese knock offs being drop shipped for a big mark up. I can just use a Chinese knock off site and pay much less lol.

I do use a bunch of different site for clothes now but that is about it. Mostly because I can't find anything in the store anymore.

For my general needs/wants, definitely Amazon because of it's ease-of-use and it's wide variety of items. You can find almost anything you'd ever need on Amazon, and if you don't like something, you can always just return it. If I'm going shopping for clothes, though, I prefer in-person shopping rather than online.

Nice choice. Newegg is reliable for quality items and AliExpress can be great if you know what to avoid.

Amazon is my favourite site to buy almost everything.

Prawnster - October 29, 2024, 11:59 am

Amazon cuz it's fuckin crazy that I can order something at 9pm at night and it be here by like 12pm the next day lmfao.

It is so convenient to shop at the last minute.

Maybe there is a secret delivery portal involved ?.

That is insane. Did you order something important or just random stuff?

Yes I love the newegg deals. And Aliexpress you have to do some research on the item before buying. I don't trust the reviews on there.

I would have to say Amazon with this one actually.
