Currently got this IPTV service, OP helped me out to set it up and everything works well.
Many channels to choose from, good quality and good buffering.

For now I haven't experienced any issues with the services.
Happy customer! ?

Just sent it! Hackforums doesn't allow me to share website link yet because I must be a vendor to share autobuy links.

Application is pending and it will be added shortly! In the mean time I can send out free trials, take payments manually, or manually share website address IF the rules permit me to.

Looking forward to being a part of a great community!

So what is the difference between your Xtreme HD IPTV and the other one? They are different websites and are ran by entirely other people. Care to explain how its structured?

Care to explain how its structured?When you buy from us it's the same great service, with a better functioning website with auto buy and 20% off with discount code HF20.

The company itself (Xtreme HD IPTV) primarily focuses on us re sellers and they sell the service themselves on the side, but the official website is expensive, has no other payment method except for Crypto only, and they have to manually process orders because their focus is being a great service, fixing issues when they occur, and catering to us re sellers.

They don't have to sell the service one by one to make money and leave it up to us re sellers.

Being a long time IPTV user, I can say nothing comes close to Xtreme HD IPTV when it comes to quality and stability.
