

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Remote work or office work?

sharn - October 29, 2024, 9:53 am

Hybrid is the best of both worlds for me.

Remote days are for deep focus tasks, while office days are for meetings and catching up with colleagues.

Which one do you prefer?

Chrome - October 29, 2024, 9:56 am

Well I work in a retail environment but if I was working an office job, I cannot work from home. Way too many distractions.

Bastille - October 29, 2024, 9:58 am

Hybrid too, I can't be at home all day long every day, and every time I finish to work, I'm still sitting at the same place behind my computer

To be honest, when I was working, I used to work from home the days less requested by other people in general, especially to avoid people in the public transport. I remember going to the office like monday and friday, some fridays the public transports were empty it was soooooo good, because people mostly ask for monday and friday.

sharn - October 29, 2024, 10:00 am

(Oct 29, 2024 09:53 AM)sharn Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Hybrid is the best of both worlds for me.

Remote days are for deep focus tasks, while office days are for meetings and catching up with colleagues.

Which one do you prefer?

Working from home is not for everyone.

Sometimes it is hard to stay focused at home.

Snowwy - October 29, 2024, 10:25 am

I wish I could work remotely. Would be great.

Charlie Sheen - October 29, 2024, 10:28 am

I work from home some days and it's nice but can be distracting. It was a major part of my decision to move this year, I had an office at my old house but it was really open, no doors, and there were times I couldn't focus. My office now is on the other side of the house and I have a lock on the door so I can't be disturbed.

I have a friend that works fully remote and he had the same issue so he talked his company into renting him one of those offices in a "coworking space", so he goes there whenever it's too distracting at home.

I think I prefer working from home.

SHADE™ - October 29, 2024, 10:41 am

I would have to say remote. Peace and quiet.

Burnzy - October 29, 2024, 10:41 am

Doing remote for 3 years now. Honestly, cant complain. Can enjoy music and decorade my desk how i like. Its almost winter and i dont have to deal with defrosting my car etc.

Mr_Kh4os - October 29, 2024, 11:06 am

Remote work all day long so then I have freedom to do other things.

Jinu - October 29, 2024, 11:49 am

I totally get that! The hybrid model really does offer a nice balance. I find that working remotely allows for deep focus, especially when I have creative tasks, while being in the office helps with collaboration and social interaction. Personally, I think a mix of both is the most effective for productivity.

Prawnster - October 29, 2024, 11:51 am

I love working from home, I can focus and get shit done.

However, I do like the social aspect of office work - So I guess hybrid it is.

SuseGD - October 29, 2024, 2:34 pm

I definitely prefer hybrid as well; this way I'm able to get other tasks done at home, while still being connected with colleagues when I'm in the office.

Fish - October 29, 2024, 2:39 pm

I prefer working from home, but right now I have the option to go into the office whenever I want which is nice

Doug Dimmadome - October 29, 2024, 2:40 pm

I work from home and wouldn't have it any other way. I enjoy being able to work at my desk, on the couch, out on the deck enjoying some beautiful weather, at a local coffee shop with the best Earl Grey Latte you ever had, or even in the car while traveling or in a hotel on a "work-cation".

I can move anywhere I want without having to find a new job too which is a crazy plus.

SuseGD - October 29, 2024, 2:47 pm

(Oct 29, 2024 02:40 PM)Hoss Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I work from home and wouldn't have it any other way. I enjoy being able to work at my desk, on the couch, out on the deck enjoying some beautiful weather, at a local coffee shop with the best Earl Grey Latte you ever had, or even in the car while traveling or in a hotel on a "work-cation".

I can move anywhere I want without having to find a new job too which is a crazy plus.

Yeah, flexibility is definitely a pretty large factor in remote work and working from home. You can always adjust your schedule to fit in other things that you need to get done, and it allows for a lot more flexibility than being in the office.

Game - October 29, 2024, 2:56 pm

Remote would be a dream for me but I can settle for hybrid.

Currently have to work on-site but I have my hopes up that one day that will change.

BPName - October 29, 2024, 3:06 pm

I work in a retail environment but if I was working an office job,

Djangoo - October 29, 2024, 8:15 pm

I work remotely and prefer it, but I sometimes feel like I'm missing out on opportunities to connect with others and grow professionally. I am more introverted now. Somebody help Django, his office is far away from home. Django wants to get out of his comfort zone?

Artisan - October 29, 2024, 8:25 pm

99% of everything I do can be done remotely but my organisation does not allow it. I would prefer to work remotely.

LeetSpeed - October 29, 2024, 8:39 pm

I'd like to try remote work. I've done work on the road but never from home.

Boil - October 29, 2024, 10:59 pm

I've only ever done some laborious jobs and not office jobs, but I would say hybrid is the sweet spot. I know at school I usually go find some secluded place outside of my dorm to deep focus on my tasks.

TheGoldenRelik - October 29, 2024, 11:09 pm

Remote work clearly. But if they want me back, at least have the flexibility of max 10 days per month

InspectorGadget - October 30, 2024, 4:58 am

They can take my remote job out of my cold dead hands! I'd do 2 days in the office but I'm never going back to 5 days a week.

Jamika - October 30, 2024, 11:20 am

(Oct 29, 2024 09:53 AM)sharn Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Hybrid is the best of both worlds for me.

Remote days are for deep focus tasks, while office days are for meetings and catching up with colleagues.

Which one do you prefer?

I wo are you work most day from away but I like more to work from office honestly, because I feel it tiring to work all day outside and I feel more rest in sitting in office

Pikachu - October 30, 2024, 11:34 am

Hard physical labor. I do landscaping lol

But what sucks is i fall asleep most of the time when I get home cause I'm always tired as fuck

Prawnster - October 30, 2024, 1:04 pm

(Oct 30, 2024 11:34 AM)Pikachu Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Hard physical labor. I do landscaping lol

But what sucks is i fall asleep most of the time when I get home cause I'm always tired as fuck
Been there mate, its hard work but can be good depending on the team you are with at least.

SuseGD - October 30, 2024, 7:57 pm

(Oct 29, 2024 10:59 PM)Boil Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I've only ever done some laborious jobs and not office jobs, but I would say hybrid is the sweet spot. I know at school I usually go find some secluded place outside of my dorm to deep focus on my tasks.

Yeah, hybrid is a great in-between option. You're able to still connect with colleagues face-to-face when you're in the office, and you also get some flexibility when you're working from home.