Thread: Making money as a beginner

YoungGeek - October 30, 2024, 10:02 am

Hello everyone I'm new here and I would like to know some techniques to earn money for the beginning even if it's $10 it does not bother me. I would like to know in which area is it easiest to make money as a beginner. Thank you

There's quite a lot of ways to make money online, even if you're a beginner, but it definitely takes some serious effort and dedication to really see your income grow. I'd suggest looking into affiliate marketing as an option, although you can find plenty other methods here on the site.

Check out my signature.

All you have to do is download apps and reach a certain level and you can get paid.

This is the type of mindset you need to have to be successful in online monetization so you starting with a little amount is by far the best thing you can do. People think it's 0-100 when it takes years to make the amount of money you will find many people here promising you can make within a months time.

Now, when it comes to making money, you should find a niche like the others pointed out. You must think like an entrepreneur.

Well dont go with shit things like surveys ,get paid to etc .This will make you some money but not serious money

I advise you to dive into serious industries like : affiliate marketing , social media marketing etc Be aware that here its not easy and you must dedicate ,have patience ,be consistent etc

A simple search on youtube for : how to make money with affiluate marketing will bring you milions of video informations to start

Be aware that some people make fake claims and they want to sell you a course
