Thread: What made you join hackforums and what kept you here?

Game - October 31, 2024, 8:58 pm

I joined for the marketplace as I wanted to buy something here. I stuck around as it was a nice community with lots of information and I felt at home.

I joined to learn about hacking and all the different types.

I initially joined because there was a thread that I wanted to see, but it wouldn't allow me to see the thread without signing up for the site, so I signed up. Once I was here, and once I got here, I would occasionally check the site to check out the marketplace. Then one day I decided to upgrade, to see what Leet and Uber was like... and once I upgraded, it was no turning back from there. Full blown member now.

I also joined for the marketplace, but for the opposite reason. I'll be selling tools eventually. Took a many-year hiatus, but I'm back now and can't wait to start stirring shit up in the market.

I joined HF because I had a virus on my computer and learned that there was a section where I could get free, trained help. I got that help and the person who infected me actually is a member here. Needless to say, it was a great experience learning about virus removal efforts and that is what kept me. Friendships too.

Bastille - November 5, 2024, 11:52 pm

I joined to learn about hacking, I've learned few things, but I stayed to provide cybersecurity tips, malware removal, and so on.

However black hat activities and methods caught my attention recently, so I hope to learn more about these things now

Ranger773 - November 6, 2024, 2:09 am its just much different than other places. I used to like reddit, but theyre too woke and too unintelligent tbh. not even trying to hate.

Yeah this was the same for me mostly.

I stopped hacking though.

ahw9n2io8wd9h - November 6, 2024, 10:35 am

My business had gotten fucked so was looking for ways to unfuck it. Didn't get much help though, but managed to unfuck it eventually.

Why I stayed? Just in case I needed something from here in the future.

?ystem - November 6, 2024, 2:48 pm

I primarily joined the forums because I was infatuated with computers and there was so much to learn from the tutorials provided by other members, and I remained active because I genuinely enjoy it here. There's never a dull moment and I continue to learn more and more.

OMG everyone has a better reason than me. ??

I'm embarrassed. I joined to get someone to hack a forum that were cyber bullying me and had DOXed me and my family.

I had only intended to get the admin password on it and delete anything about me and mess with it a little....

BUT

A 16 year old kid here hacked it for me successfully for $25 and he just destroyed it completely. ?

Even better there was another board where they all went to whine and cry about losing their forum and everything on it, and I got to read all of it and laugh.

I wish the kid that did that hadn't quit Hack Forums and disappeared. He bruteforced it and her password was something like 372 273

I stayed mostly because you can get a first review here to help a product. I don't buy a lot of fake reviews, but just one five star can get the ball rolling. That's all I'll buy. Funny how after one five star review that's fake I'll start getting sales and a lot of genuine five star ones organically. lol

The other reason I learned a lot here about protecting myself online and also it's just fun.
