Looks like we were offline for an hour or two. I am investigating now. Potentially socket crash and nginx problem. We're online now (of course). I will look into it and report back if I find anything solid.

Thank you, let us know what you discover!

Actually looks closer to 3 hours offline. I've made an adjustment which should help. Part of the issue is how the eth0 interface is using an IP I don't have in systemd interface. That's corrected now. So when Nginx crashed, it wasn't getting the proper IP to the interface. It should now which means if Nginx crashes and automatically restarts it should work normal. Hopefully.

EDIT: Yeah, Nginx crash because it won't BIND to the address.

Thanks for the update, wasn't even aware the site went offline. Sounds like there is a lot more technical side to running a forum then I imagined. I have no clue what any of that stuff means that you said caused the outage.

Appreciate the update, glad we are back online.

Most members have no clue how much time I spend on server admin side of things. I'm in an SSH session half the time.

How close are you to the server move? Hopefully that will help things once that's done.
