Thread: I need this webiste hacked for grades.

I_need_As - November 6, 2024, 10:54 am

Hi!

My maths teacher recently created a website.
He said it's not that secure and he would probably be able to hack it.
He also said that if someone manages to hack it, he would give 3 A's to them.
I'd need it to display: "Kérem at ötöst :) - Vince" for everyone who visits the site.

Is there anyone who could help me?
I really need these grades.

rf.
gd

Thank you!

I'm not a fed :sob:

Can't even begin to help you if you do not post the link to the site. Duh.

I'm starting to think this guy is a FED. That being said send the link and a written owner consent to hack the site. Or just the link with no consent and i'll promise i didn't do it. Or maybe i did, I dont know anything.

You're protesting awfully hard when no one is accusing you. Anyway, the URL parameter does not appear to be vulnerable to SQL injection, and though NFS is running, I could find no open mountpoints.

This might be interesting: <https://tekes.rf.gd/validate.php> actually, don't hack it, it was so easy, I got an A because of this website

DramaKing - November 7, 2024, 9:25 am

Good for you. I just checked on my last nmap scan, and it found a 19-year-old vulnerability in PHPMyAdmin allowing directory traversal or Platform Traversal LFI.

That's cool, five minutes of your time, write it down.
