Thread: Is Radix \(XRD\) cooked?

Semmenial - November 9, 2024, 4:27 pm

Hi everyone,

I haven't been keeping up much with how the Radix project is going, but I do recall it was a pretty hot topic here on HF (last year? Idk time flies).

To me, it looks like the project is done for, based off the price/value/marketing. Has anyone been keeping up with it these days? Anybody disagree?

My crypto portfolio generally doesn't require me to constantly check on projects, but Radix was one of those projects that holds a small % of my portfolio because it looked promising back then.

sadly one of the many that didn't survive the test of time 100% dead. Weird enough though, it is one of the few dead projects that I made a really good returned investment. Guess I got out in time.

I don't think the coin is dead. Theres still alot going on but the marketing team is bad and they spend there money the bad way.

I made alot of money with the eco system with coins like WOWO. I sold them all to break even with mu investment.

Have 415k XRD left and i will either win win big or lose all.

Dev team just as bad too. Way behind their dates and honestly some of their GUI on the newer stuff is just atrocious.

I consider XRD dead. Replaced by Sui which is up 500% or more this past year.

Just get out, take the L.

Was hoping not to see XRD pop up here again.

They played us - the team got filthy rich and sucked out every last penny from it's investors.

I took a 5 figure loss before I decided to pull the pin and get out.

Constant lies, deception, delays, unjust bans (could go on) just pushed the community away. All they have left now is their echo chamber of die hards who consider any criticism FUD.

Wish someone would have told me to buy BTC, hold and STFU.

Bitcoin is already 95% of my portfolio in Crypto, other 5% is dedicated for new projects.

So I don't mind. Lol.

I say that's a wise statement. ?

thrudda - November 11, 2024, 5:35 am

Converted all my eXRD > XRD eventually took the loss and move on
