Waste of money. You're young and think you'll be cool with a car like a GTR. Spend half that and do some financial investing.

My thinking was I have a 2018 Hyundai and it's not best.

Luxury car at home only has 450 horsepower.

I was thinking GTR has more horsepower and overseas they sell more I can get excellent rate?

You'll spend half of what you spend on the car just maintaining it.

If you want a fast car, buy one for $10k and set aside another $10k for upgraded parts.

Something like a Hyundai Elantra N or i30N. That's what I own and its reliable, good power, handles well, fun.

2Grand is the invoice after my engine is replaced and new fan requires programming.

Selling the car is for the best. I want to avoid this brand now.

The nissan will be a rust bucket anyways in 5-6 years if that.

Go make memories and enrich your soul for the next life type beat.

Totally agree , nissan is a waste of money nowadays, not recommended to anyone

I'm jumping on the "Say no to Nissan" bandwagon here. I get that GTR's are cool but that thing's not gonna hold up at all man. Have you considered a Type R?
