Man Upset About Losing in NBA 2K Video Game Allegedly Threw His Baby.

A Wisconsin father has been accused of throwing his 8-month-old at a wall because he was losing at a video game while caring for the child.

"He hit his head hard on the wall, bro," part of his alleged confession read, according to the complaint.

"I heard the wall, it was hard on his head," he continued. "I heard the impact of the wall after I tossed him."

White was reportedly losing by two points in the game when he became angry, per police accounts.

Some people can't control their temper and go crazy over trivial things... what that person did was madness itself.

All these cases where babies are shaken because someone gets mad about their crying or whatever, they really need to teach in high schools seriously how bad that is.

Threw the Babay! Unbelievable!

He has serious impluse issues. Need to go to a mental hospital immediately

No. He will go to prison instead. And why don't we teach in schools about never shaking a baby? But apparently from the article he'd been abusing the baby for some time. Unbelievable indeed the boy was only eight months old.
