

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Bitcoin straight to 100k or slight pullback to 80k then 100k?

Skidsuper - November 16, 2024, 7:50 am

It's currently at 90k.

SIM-5049184 - November 16, 2024, 8:40 am

100k is more difficult than 120k, 170k is topy

SIM-5084040 - November 16, 2024, 11:15 am

Who knows maybe it wont hit 100k

Omniscient - November 16, 2024, 2:48 pm

Who cares which way it goes short-term? Can go to $75k within a week and then $110k next month. You should be obtaining Bitcoin at all price points.

Skidsuper - November 16, 2024, 3:08 pm

(Nov 16, 2024 03:48 PM)Omniscient Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Who cares which way it goes short-term? Can go to $75k within a week and then $110k next month. You should be obtaining Bitcoin at all price points.

I have few thousands as spot but it's not life changing. I was contemplating using futures leverage to win some big or lose it all ?? I believe it will go up eventually. Just calculating risks for liquidation.

Omniscient - November 16, 2024, 3:19 pm

(Nov 16, 2024 04:08 PM)Skidsuper Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I have few thousands as spot but it's not life changing. I was contemplating using futures leverage to win some big or lose it all ?? I believe it will go up eventually. Just calculating risks for liquidation.

Buy BTC and hold. 100% success rate. No one has ever lost their value using the strategy of Buy and Hold. BTC has always reached new ATH's every couple years.

Why would you choose an option that risks full liquidation? "win some big or lose it all" is gambling, that's not investing. When you finally understand that you can start to build wealth. As long as you think investing is gambling, you will always be a loser.

Rubysplash - December 6, 2024, 8:59 pm

105k, pullback 85k

2025 125k