So the gif click was a thing But what about photos, stickers, audio, and store?

I feel like do have something in them or have you seen a hotspot setting join a hotspot without clicking a thing, this happened to me at school but I didn't get hacked but I did join a hotspot with no clicks.

theoretically anything that the application interacts with without needing user input. dont bother trying, you will not accidentally stumble across a 0click 0day. these things take at least some level of understanding of how computers work at a low level and how these applications work.

This is a lot of nonsense. GIF click? If there is anyone who has a zero-click, zero-day RCE for iOS and is willing to sell it, you'd better be prepared to spend at least a million dollars.

there was a gif exoplt in apple code so when people send a gif with bad code it would go to the person phone then the data base

Oh, you mean the FORCEDENTRY PDF exploit. I was confused because Pegasus spoofed the file extension as .gif. Your English was still hard to understand, so I had to look it up. Source Yeah, this is something that you can only dream about.

Yeah, you won't find a "0 click" exploit here.
