

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: How to remove TG traces? xmrlegend - November 22, 2024, 1:20 pm

How to completely leave trace of an TG account? No existence of that account? deleting is the solution?

$!uo2H%gE# - December 6, 2024, 3:18 am

Your best chance is to delete your account. Deleting your account removes all messages, media, contacts and every other piece of data you store in the Telegram cloud.

<https://telegram.org/privacy/eu#10-deleting-data>

Biggy_Asian - December 19, 2024, 7:07 pm

(Dec 6, 2024 04:18 AM)$!uo2H%gE# Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Your best chance is to delete your account. Deleting your account removes all messages, media, contacts and every other piece of data you store in the Telegram cloud.

<https://telegram.org/privacy/eu#10-deleting-data>

This is false. Your messages still stay and all your media too. Hell knowing how much of a sell out the ceo is he probably still stores account logs. You stupid little sheeple. ?

athena-chan - January 2, 2025, 12:32 am ideally you just don't leave a trace at all you can delete your account but as far as i know your messages will still be there you could delete all of your messages for both people, but your metadata has already been collected

it's best not to treat it like an ultimatum for privacy and to treat it more like you would any other messaging software, although it definitely feels like that defeats the purpose... i have messages auto delete after 24 hours but i won't act like that would save me from federal persecution if i were hypothetically committing crimes, i just do it for the privacy of myself within my relationships with others

i do recommend matrix on the other hand though

XtremeDiscount - January 11, 2025, 5:51 am

Deleting your account