Pwnagotchi seems to be a good project if you get compatible hardware and are able to make it work.

Also, don't you think that this request is overly broad?

Yeah the hardware is where I trip. Do you know of any decent Wi-Fi adapters?

Did you try googling "Kali WiFi adapters?" But since you asked, I like my MT7612u adapter. It's only Wi-Fi 5, but it supports monitor mode and packet injection.

The ubertooth one which by the looks of things isn't officially available anymore by it's creator Great Scott Gadgets is the best bluetooth hacking specific hardware, There are knock off versions available on aliexpress and things like that.

What mainly makes the ubertooth special compared to other 2.4 ghz bluetooth transceivers is that it's a programmable board.

Wifi hacking tools I'd say that Hak5 still has the undisputed crown, They've worked very hard over the years to refine their hardware and software to be cheaper and more reliable than any competitors.
