Not one to talk about life in general, but is has been a hard one lately...

Just the general struggle as most people, family issues, kids issues ... shit is just never ending for everyone out there, im no more special than the person reading this at the opposite side of the planet.

Already on a 12 hour day job, but willing to do some extra to support my family. Don't want to be a millionaire, just want to stop living with head above water and actually manage to breathe for once in my life. Not worry about my family and if I need to do more, not worry about cost of living.

Not posting this for attention, just getting shit off my chest and acknowledging it is bad out there.

Anyone else experiencing this, I am here if you need to talk to someone.. no judgement.
