Omniscient - December 17, 2024, 11:39 am

NET (Cloudflare) is a good BUY.

They're gonna start having earnings soon. They offer a great variety of services for websites and even apps. They are ripe for a possible buyout one day from either Google or Apple or even Amazon.

I made a ton of money from the stock when I bought it years ago then sold at its high. Right now I bought some options a month ago which are up huge. Stock up 30% in just the past month.

Yes, however, I am pretty bullish on them for the long term. It hits a soft spot for me because I was interviewing with them years ago before going back to uni. SCCO is looking pretty good right now for short term analysis. This is another reason I am not really a fan of individual stocks but prefer ETF's.

Personally I lowered most of my exposure in the market and took some profit.

I bought NET (Cloudflare) again after selling at highs. I sold TSLA that was in my personal account (non-retirement) but kept it in my actual IRA.

Some GLD (gold etf) shares.

And just now, placed order for AIQ at market open Monday.

I'm curious why you aren't into bonds or gold with what is going on.

I'm currently getting a nice 9% return on senior loan ETF and high yield bonds spread across around 4000 different ones.
