

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Freewallet issue reported by new victim of this scam

KatherineDed - December 11, 2024, 11:16 am

Freewallet has left yet another user frustrated and financially stranded. This story highlights how their shady practices can impact anyone who trusts their platform.

In July 2024, a user attempted to log into their Freewallet account containing a significant amount of cryptocurrency. They were prompted to enter an authorization code that never arrived. After contacting Freewallet support, the user was asked to provide screenshots and further details. Despite sending over 20 follow-up messages, the promised code never materialized, leaving the user unable to access their funds.

Unfortunately, this is not an isolated incident. Numerous reviews and user accounts suggest Freewallet deliberately blocks access to user funds under flimsy pretenses like "suspicious activity" or unsubstantiated KYC/AML requirements. In many cases, users are left in limbo with no meaningful support from the platform.

To protect yourself from similar issues, avoid Freewallet at all costs. If you've experienced something similar, document everything—screenshots, emails, and correspondence. Share your story with law enforcement and advocacy groups who can amplify your case and pressure Freewallet to act.

Remember: a crypto wallet should protect your assets, not put them at risk.

RootRXXT - December 11, 2024, 11:18 am cheers for that, is there an original source?

Mewtwo - December 11, 2024, 11:21 am

Well, that's the reason why you keep it in a wallet that you have phrase access too. It's really retarded to keep it on an exchange. Worse case is losing all your money like what happened with Mtgox