

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: What's your work schedule look like?

jcole - December 17, 2024, 6:15 pm

Recently the company I work for has been cutting our hours because they don't want us working in the dark. Since the time change I work less during the days, and get to sleep more throughout the week. My schedule as of now is:

I religiously go to bed at 10PM.

I religiously wake up at 6:30AM.

I'm at work clocked in by 7:30AM.

I work all day with no lunch, and clock out at 5:30PM.

(I take my "mandatory" lunch at the end of the day.)

I work 60 hours a week, and recently have to come in on Saturdays to get my desired hours in. What's your schedule look like?

jcole - December 17, 2024, 6:27 pm

(Dec 17, 2024 07:27 PM)Nintendo Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I don't have a work schedule I'm unemployed I know that's a lie.

Sahgid - December 17, 2024, 8:32 pm

I just started work; three 12 hour shifts but trying to fit college in. I can do a certification course instead to save time. How old are you? 60 hours seems alot, I'd like to try though assuming the consistency rolls throughout work.

Fish - December 17, 2024, 8:50 pm

(Dec 17, 2024 07:15 PM)jcole Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Recently the company I work for has been cutting our hours because they don't want us working in the dark. Since the time change I work less during the days, and get to sleep more throughout the week. My schedule as of now is:

I religiously go to bed at 10PM.

I religiously wake up at 6:30AM.

I'm at work clocked in by 7:30AM.

I work all day with no lunch, and clock out at 5:30PM.

(I take my "mandatory" lunch at the end of the day.)

I work 60 hours a week, and recently have to come in on Saturdays to get my desired hours in. What's your schedule look like?

Wake up: 9am - 10am

Do work 10 - 5 or 6

Sleep ideally before midnight, lately it's been 1 or 2 am though

jcole - December 18, 2024, 4:55 am

(Dec 17, 2024 09:32 PM)Sahgid Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I just started work; three 12 hour shifts but trying to fit college in. I can do a certification course instead to save time. How old are you? 60 hours seems alot, I'd like to try though assuming the consistency rolls throughout work. I'm 27, and would like to not have to work so much. The overtime pay is the only thing that keeps me doing it.

(Dec 17, 2024 09:50 PM)Fish Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Wake up: 9am - 10am

Do work 10 - 5 or 6

Sleep ideally before midnight, lately it's been 1 or 2 am though

Solid schedule. I want a job like it, as long as the pay is good.

Sahgid - December 18, 2024, 5:03 am

(Dec 18, 2024 05:55 AM)jcole Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'm 27, and would like to not have to work so much. The overtime pay is the only thing that keeps me doing it.

Solid schedule. I want a job like it, as long as the pay is good.
I try to work overtime. Right now I just quit studying to get a hang of work life.

jcole - December 18, 2024, 5:04 am

(Dec 18, 2024 06:03 AM)Sahgid Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I try to work overtime. Right now I just quit studying to get a hang of work life.

I don't do any schooling right now. If I did.. I wouldn't be working sixty hours a week. The schedule would be insane.

BlackRock - December 18, 2024, 5:06 am

I actually have the luxury of waking up whenever I want and work whenever I want. :D

Sahgid - December 18, 2024, 5:08 am

(Dec 18, 2024 06:04 AM)jcole Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I don't do any schooling right now. If I did.. I wouldn't be working sixty hours a week. The schedule would be insane.

Have you thought about it? Like for work I plan on staying 35+ years. Fast food cashier stuff is fine for moving up a tier though like experience and stuff not just punching the clock. I guess what I'm trying to say is staying somewhere for work and being unhappy about it would be detrimental but isn't the worst thing in the world.

Fish - December 18, 2024, 6:42 am

(Dec 18, 2024 05:55 AM)jcole Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'm 27, and would like to not have to work so much. The overtime pay is the only thing that keeps me doing it.

Solid schedule. I want a job like it, as long as the pay is good.
Facts. Once you have a job everything gets easier, hopefully

Charlie Sheen - December 18, 2024, 3:22 pm

Insane lately. I got thrown into the fire taking over some projects that started 2 months ago and now the deadlines are coming and the guy who was overseeing them was terminated since he wasn't getting anything done.

Yin Yang - December 18, 2024, 3:42 pm

Mine's the 9-5, nothing crazy

Jamika - December 20, 2024, 9:15 am

I go to work in the morning, then I come back and have lunch. I spend some time with my family before heading out for the evening shift. Later at night, I return, and we sit together for a while before going to bed. This is what usually happens.

Flan. - December 23, 2024, 10:30 pm

my schedule's pretty simple, nothing crazy like 60 hrs. wake up around 8, start work at 9, done by 5 most days. try to hit the gym after work but honestly i've been slackin lol.

props to you for grindin that hard tho, idk if i could handle 60 hrs a week—do you still get time to just chill?

