Walmart has those old gaming chairs on sale for $20. There's a few colors left in stock. Great gift for kids.

I used to have a chair like this when I was a kid. It was kind of like curved at the bottom so it could rock and it had speakers built into the head. Was a fire chair, I might pick one of these up just because of the price

These chairs are awesome when you're gaming on TV to be honest.
Cousin used to have one of those, along with one of those sandbag "chairs"

Playing GTA all night long, good times.

Yeah, they are more comfortable than a couch.

I can vouch for this statement.

LMAO. I thought the same thing when I saw it. It just kinda looks strange. I've personally never owned a gaming chair, but a bunch of my buddies have them and some of my cousins. It's about time that I get a new chair, as it's been about 5 years since I got my last one and its starting to wear thin.. but I don't think I'll be getting the $20 special. :)

I'm sure there are some kids that would be more then happy to have that chair though. It's just not what I think of when I think of gaming chair.

I reckon this would be fire but not for current generation of kids.

Shame split-screen games are less frequent than before.

I can imagine playing NFS Split-Screen with friends and having couple of these would be fire.
