

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Do you enjoy Christmas markets?

sharn - December 19, 2024, 1:07 am

I enjoy Christmas markets when they are not too crowded.
The decorations and overall atmosphere make it a delightful experience.

Do you go for the food, the gifts or the atmosphere?
Or do you prefer to skip them?

Deany - December 19, 2024, 1:07 am

Not been to one in a long time, but the kettle corn is bussin

Prawnster - December 19, 2024, 2:23 am

I like them because of the crazy-good food stands you can find when ya go down there but my girl hates em cuz it's too many people so she just clings to me whilst I try buyin and consuming as much food as humanly possible haha.

BlackRock - December 19, 2024, 2:24 am

Absolutely. It's so cozy. The warmth, the lights and the general feeling of cozyness. Can't wait to bring my wife to her first christmas market next year. Unfortunately we won't be able to go this year.

Michael - December 23, 2024, 8:25 am

They're nice, when they're not too crowded yeah.

Prawnster - December 23, 2024, 8:40 am

Yeah sometimes! They can be great, good food, good drinks and good company.

Bashe - December 23, 2024, 8:51 am

Only if they aren't too crowded.

Foxy Proxies Ltd - December 23, 2024, 8:59 am

(Dec 19, 2024 02:07 AM)sharn Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I enjoy Christmas markets when they are not too crowded.

The decorations and overall atmosphere make it a delightful experience.

Do you go for the food, the gifts or the atmosphere?
Or do you prefer to skip them?
I go for all of the above.