Which one do you prefer? I like both so I'm wondering where everyone lands on this.

Hello team colored representing

I personally prefer white lights. But for the kids it's color. So as a compromise I use adjustable lights, and change from white to color as I feel like it (so when the kids are in school, like right now for example, I run white lights).

Prefer coloured more than white one , look more delightful

I think it depends on the vibe and decoration of the rest of the room. Both can look as great as the other in certain situations.

I like both types of lights, but I prefer the static lights on the tree. There's something peaceful and cozy about them, especially when they glow steadily throughout the night.

Colored lights add a fun, nostalgic and festive vibe that perfectly captures the spirit of Christmas.

I have both lit up around. The colored lights are Icicle Lighting, love them more :D

I like the trees that can alternate between both.

I like white lights. They give a really different vibe and atmosphere that I think matches with my sense of beauty

I like both and they each give off their own aesthetic, but if I had to choose one or the other I would go with colored lights just because they have more variety than white lights
