Thread: Is snow magical or just an inconvenience?

Prawnster - December 20, 2024, 10:48 am

Do you like the snow around winter/christmas or does it just make your days harder?

In UK we hardly EVER have snow but when we do, it's great... only thing to mention is it seems to almost cause the whole country to come to a stand still for a bit ?

vvs1 - December 20, 2024, 10:52 am

No winter or snow here. It's either hot,cool, or rainy but just that.

Deany - December 20, 2024, 10:53 am

What kinda snow we talkin here?

Bashe - December 20, 2024, 11:45 am

It depends on where you live. I've lived in the cold, where they are super efficient at removing snow, so it doesn't make that much of an inconvenience. But I've also lived where they are horrible at removing snow and preparing for snowstorms.

sharn - December 20, 2024, 12:14 pm

Snow can be both.

It is magical when you are cozy inside by the fire, but it is definitely an inconvenience when you are shoveling the driveway or dealing with travel delays.

?ystem - December 20, 2024, 12:23 pm

We got around five inches of snow from the storm that went through our area yesterday, and I view it as being an inconvenience with how much shoveling that needs to be done in order to access entryways etc.

Liquidicey - December 20, 2024, 12:34 pm

We love a good snow day.

BlackRock - December 20, 2024, 12:52 pm

Snow is beautiful but damn it can be an inconvenience

blackrose_x0x0 - December 20, 2024, 1:30 pm

I think it's just a form of precipitation.

I do enjoy snow though, yes. I love skiing and snowboarding so I look forward to that every winter.

Living in an area that gets snow frequently, I find snow to more of a nuisance then anything magical. After a while one gets tired of getting up and having to shovel the driveway, just for a big ass truck to come by and throw a bunch more snow right back on to your driveway.. that is much heavier then the snow you already shoveled, as it's mixed with slush and water

Yeah tbh I can see how that would be annoying as fuck having to deal with that on a regular basis.

Think the general consensus in the thread is that it CAN be nice to look at if you aren't trying to leave haha.

Beherit - December 21, 2024, 12:28 am

Snow is magic from the overlords of the world. So yes it is magical ;)

RangoWorld - December 21, 2024, 3:10 am

When it happens less frequently it's magically. When it's on your face everywhere and is a blockade to your productivity and work then it becomes an inconvenience.

Still snow itself is magical.

Yes yes the magical overlord called weather ?

Yeah, that's a fair assessment I'd say.

If it snows in the UK it looks great but then the whole country panics and goes into a standstill though so sometimes can be frustrating hahaha.

The first day it's magical. After when it freezes over it becomes an inconvenience.

eXceptional - December 22, 2024, 9:37 pm

Never been in snow ever. We don't get to see snow here in Mumbai, India.

Michael - December 23, 2024, 1:17 am

It's somewhere in between both lol.

Yeah that sounds accurate tbh.

Ahhh I think you might be missing out if you've never ever seen it!

Yeah not wrong haha.

I can see snow here in India if I ever plan to visit the Himalayas.

Very true very true! At least the option is there if you ever get the desire to experience it!

I have the desire to visit. Just waiting for my 3 year old to grow till 5 or 6 maybe and then I'll plan a trip.

Miles Teller - December 23, 2024, 10:05 am

I personally enjoy the cold and love the aesthetic that snow provides ramply - December 23, 2024, 9:48 pm

Snow is cool let's say if you live somewhere where there isn't a lot of it but when you live in a place where it's always snowy, it gets real messy and it just becomes terrible.

Flan. - December 23, 2024, 10:26 pm winter's nice when you're inside, but when you're scraping ice off your car at 6am? yeah, not so much.

i love a good snow day but the slush after? nah. how do y'all feel—worth it or overrated?

Which snow we talking about? The kind on the ground thats sometimes comes in fun flavors like piss yellow, or that white snow in the plastic bag that the guy down on the corner sells? (LOL)

Chrome - December 24, 2024, 4:03 am

I've never seen the snow

Ripleex - December 24, 2024, 4:40 am

It didn't snow where I'm from, but it does in other places, and I love visiting them. Since I dislike cold places, I'm not sure if I want it to happen every day.

Jamika - December 24, 2024, 5:37 am

I wish it would snow here... I've only seen snow in person once, and that was back in middle school. I really enjoyed it at the time.

Yeah bud I think that's fair, nice to have trips to look forward to in future too.
