

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Are you a Risk Taking or Risk Averse Person?

RangoWorld - December 21, 2024, 3:35 am

I believe we all have natural tendency to be on either end of the Risk spectrum. Some people are naturally (personality wise) more tuned to take more or less risk in everything in life. Both have its pros and cons.

Where are you on the risk spectrum? Have you changed. Do you want to change your risk appetite?

Slumerican ? - December 21, 2024, 5:04 am

I already consider myself a risk-taker, but what I want to change is pushing this even further. I aim to become an even bolder risk-taker and take things to the next level.

Prawnster - December 21, 2024, 5:15 am

I try to take smart risks, I'd rather risk funds and try to start something (e.g. a business or service) and lose the money, than just never try to start anything.

I have savings and a good network of people that can help if something goes wrong and good people in my personal circle too so I feel these are calculated risks.

Of course, sometimes I make stupid choices and it ends up in a very risky situation haha.

Mr_Kh4os - December 21, 2024, 5:31 am

I will always take the risk, it is the motto that I live by as corny as it may seem I am a man of opportunity! It has helped give me more experience in life no doubt.

Miles Teller - December 21, 2024, 5:50 am

I always take risks, just the type of guy I am. I would rather have done something and regret it then not have done something.

Thaewhoreking - December 21, 2024, 6:15 am

Risk taking for sure without risk no reward

$!uo2H%gE# - December 21, 2024, 6:38 am

I am more like "I don't give a f" person so that can be considered somehow as taking a risk. I am fine if I fail in 90% of things that I start.

Yin Yang - December 21, 2024, 6:39 am

Average. I don't do bat shit crazy crap

RangoWorld - December 21, 2024, 6:44 am

(Dec 21, 2024 06:04 AM)Slumerican ? Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I already consider myself a risk-taker, but what I want to change is pushing this even further. I aim to become an even bolder risk-taker and take things to the next level.

I think a problem arises is that as old we start to get and as more responsibility come on our shoulders. Including the eventual responsibility of other people. We cannot take more risk than a certain limit. Otherwise we will put others at risk too.

That's why it's best that young people potentially take risks. Not reckless, life threatening risk of course.

(Dec 21, 2024 06:15 AM)Prawnster Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I try to take smart risks, I'd rather risk funds and try to start something (e.g. a business or service) and lose the money, than just never try to start anything.

I have savings and a good network of people that can help if something goes wrong and good people in my personal circle too so I feel these are calculated risks.

Of course, sometimes I make stupid choices and it ends up in a very risky situation haha. This is a big factor in risk appetite. If you have a safety net you can potentially even afford to burn all your ships or try to put all eggs in one basket. But if you don't have a safety net then you can't really go on all, cause if it goes wrong then you will really hit the rock bottom.

Jamika - December 21, 2024, 7:21 am

(Dec 21, 2024 04:35 AM)RangoWorld Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I believe we all have natural tendency to be on either end of the Risk spectrum. Some people are naturally (personality wise) more tuned to take more or less risk in everything in life. Both have its pros and cons.

Where are you on the risk spectrum? Have you changed. Do you want to change your risk appetite?

Tbh i dont take risks alot , i may take it with calculated steps , but i dont push hard .

sharn - December 21, 2024, 10:30 am

It depends on the situation.

I will take risks if the reward is worth it.

DanielZ - December 21, 2024, 4:13 pm

Depends the risk, you could say risking all your money on red, or risking for a good opportunity, I personally try to size pros and cons mostly for my family.

Deany - December 21, 2024, 4:35 pm

Ya I risked all my wealth on anime trash Beherit

Jinu - December 21, 2024, 5:23 pm

(Dec 21, 2024 04:35 AM)RangoWorld Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I believe we all have natural tendency to be on either end of the Risk spectrum. Some people are naturally (personality wise) more tuned to take more or less risk in everything in life. Both have its pros and cons.

Where are you on the risk spectrum? Have you changed. Do you want to change your risk appetite?

I think I lean more towards the cautious side of the risk spectrum. I prefer to analyze and plan before making big decisions, but I've noticed that being overly cautious can sometimes hold me back from opportunities. Over time, I've been trying to take more calculated risks to step out of my comfort zone. It's definitely a work in progress! How about you?

Bashe - December 21, 2024, 5:47 pm

I'm definitely a big risk-taker. It's just who I am.

esimbuy.org - December 21, 2024, 6:28 pm

I took risk untill lost all funds lol now never again for 6 month and keeping continue this.

