Saudi Billionaire Goes All In With $1 Billion Purchase Right Before Tyson Fury vs. Oleksandr Usyk 2

On X, Glaser revealed, "Breaking news, printed nowhere, an entity controlled by @Turki_alalshikh has now purchased 13% of DAZN." DAZN, boxing's premier broadcaster, and HE Turki Alalshikh have been in a strategic partnership for almost a year now. While DAZN has the exclusive right to every Riyadh Season pay-per-view broadcast, this partnership has grown exponentially in the past few months. In September, His Excellency announced the launch of Al-Hilal, the Saudi Club's dedicated channel on DAZN, sponsored by the Riyadh Season. Furthermore, a month later, DAZN became the main sponsor of UD Almería in the Spanish Segunda Division, a club also owned by HE Turki Alalshikh.

Man , this is hilarious ? ?, he has endless cash !

The Saudis definitely have endless cash. They are PRINTING money. No tax either.

Unlike most countries, Saudi Arabia does not impose a tax on any form of personal income. This is true for both residents and non-residents of Saudi Arabia. There is also no inheritance tax, gift tax, or stamp duty. Because of this, many expats consider Saudi Arabia to be a tax-free country.30 sept. 2024

Oh, I know, I just wish most country's had no taxes in a similar fashion. But that is a crazy amount of money. I find taxes somewhat of a scam, since they started during the civil war and was meant to be a temp thing made permanent.
