Thread: Do You Celebrate Christmas Eve or Just Call It an Early Night?

Yanix - December 23, 2024, 12:39 am

I'm curious – how do you guys spend Christmas Eve? Do you go all out with family gatherings, late-night dinners and gift exchanges? Or is it just a quiet night where you relax and head to bed early, saving the excitement for Christmas morning?

For some reason, I've always liked the cozy, calm vibe of Christmas Eve, but I know others make it a big part of their celebration.

What's your tradition? Party or peace? ?

At home usually with Family. I'm not fond of going outside in congested public places on occasions like these

That sounds like a perfect way to spend it! Being with family and avoiding the holiday chaos honestly feels so much more peaceful. Sometimes the best memories are made right at home.

I generally don't like going out for the sake of it. I want to go - when I want to go. Some of my friends go out just because everyone else is.

I usually hang out with friends over Christmas Eve and with family during Christmas.

That sounds like a wonderful balance! It's nice to spend time with both friends and family during the holidays.

Yeah, that way both of whom I don't get to see too often get a piece of me.

I celebrate with a family gathering and going out to eat. Something simple and not too crazy
