Thread: What are your new years resolutions?

blubberingidiot - December 23, 2024, 5:03 pm

To be honest, I feel like I will die or be killed soon. It might be something supernatural like God punishing me.

My aim is to bulk up and get some muscle. I want to be in heaven, not this fallen world. I am turning my heart towards God.

New year resolutions are a scam, majority of folks never hold up to them and you're better off not making any.

Just keep working towards your goals and never quit,

New years resolution is to get a little bit more organized. While I tend to get myself involved in a lot of different things in relation to business, I have a tendency to not be the most organized person.. and very scattered brain. I'll write things down here, write something else down over there... not remember where I wrote those things the next day. So one of my goals is to get a little more organized.

Meh, I don't really follow them.

I used to think the same. I failed to reach my 2024 goals. But I'm still here.

Now my aim is to reach those in 2025. But I don't think I will be killing myself if I fall short of perfection in life - It's okay. I now want to enjoy life as well.
