I want to upload a shell to a XenForo site. If someone has detailed knowledge of this, can they explain?

What's the attack vector first? You have file upload restrictions or what.

So like a forum? You can try uploading PHP as an avatar, but I'd consider it a waste of time. Encoding it and all won't help when sites know to only accept specific filetypes.

You'd have to find a 0day or hope they used an older version that's not updated. You can always keep track of vulns and updates with XF and try to get one past them before they upgrade.

This site might help.

There is no way to upload php files to xenforo.

There are just another way , and you must have admin rights
