I'd be honest none of my clients used Xbox to watch IPTV so far, but I've seen that using Open IPTV app should work properly with xstream code (Also Kodi with Plugins). Feel free to ask for a trial to check it out, I'd love to know the results.

As for your question, I do accept PayPal, feel free to reach out!

Worked. But. Doesn't work. Nothing works. Not a single channel works on IPTVNator, but I am able to connect at least.

The IPTVSmarters URL just doesn't connect at all.

Even the over the air (free) channels like ABC and NBC and such just don't work, nothing works, I have not found one channel that plays. As a result, I cannot say I'd recommend anyone buy this ?

<https://streamable.com/j04lpf>

I've tried with and without a VPN, its not an ISP block or throttle.

EDIT - OY VEY I'm a dumbass. It turned out just switching a setting in my IPTV player from a JS player to HTML5 has fixed everything. Allow me to peruse the NBA games tomorrow and I'll leave a review! Apologies.

Kaleb - December 31, 2025, 2:19 am

Its pretty good in my opinion especially for the price I caught all the NBA games tonight was all smooth and not laggy and stuff pretty good quality for the price and all that jazz I'm satisfied ?

Any IPTV app that supports Xtreme Code login, which is 95% of them. Some TVs like Samsung and LG need specific apps that might cost, like IboPlayer, as there are no convenient alternatives.

Some specific countries like Canada/Italy might require a VPN to log in to the IPTV as ISPs are blocking the servers.

Everything I said here is standard for any IPTV provider!
