I can't help but to feel watching the market suffer the past 2 weeks that we're gonna have a massive bounce back in mid-January. Possibly Inauguration date. Market is taking a beating and sucks to watch the gains go bye-bye but I think they'll be back by summer.

I'm gonna wait till new year and start buying and right now I'm holding.

Are you holding, selling, or buying?

Artisan - December 27, 2024, 8:50 am

I'm HODLing hard. Usually don't cashout my crypto to fiat and took my positions during the last dip. I'll hold for a while and exit at 4-5X. Then rinse and repeat.

This isn't about crypto. This is about market investing. So unless you're buying Bitcoin ETF's...go into the crypto forum.

I've been heavily DCA this year into the S&P500 and in the iShares S&P Information Technology. I don't plan to change my strategy anytime soon since I have made some good profits this year.

LSD - December 27, 2024, 12:32 pm

this all started with fed news about next year having fewer rate cuts than expected. considering that, I'm not fully bearish by any means but market is currently trying to price in the economic outlook for the next year.

G Eazy - December 27, 2024, 1:53 pm

Holding like always!

Zher0 - December 27, 2024, 2:15 pm

I am holding, but I have also been thinking about buying. I will wait for the new year, but $ACHR has been popping off. I might dump that and take my profits.

A good run the past few months.

Major reversals just this week's ending for all currency pairs and ETH shot up $200 alone, gonna be big moves.

Tyr - January 5, 2025, 1:02 pm

Ew. I will never invest this time of the year. Only sell. Convince me otherwise please.

What are your holdings? Im a simple man, S&P 500 is all I need.

Aggregate - January 14, 2025, 9:59 am

No promises but my fingers are on the sell button if I see massive gains.

Right now I am daytrading (yes, I know, but hear me out) with very small amounts to get a feel for certain altcoins based on their performance for the first time because I do not really have much time to do much apart from hold enough for transactions, etc.

Looking forward to the pump next Monday!

Epic - January 16, 2025, 5:22 pm

Markets have definitely been stagnant since later part of November. SPX only down about 2.5% from all time highs, so not a huge dip in my opinion, but NDQ it getting hit a little bit harder. S&P needs to stay above the 5,700 level, or we could potentially break down into lower trends in my opinion.

I will continue to dollar cost average my portfolio, as per my usual.

Flan. - January 17, 2025, 4:50 pm

DCA always, buy more on red days. Never sell.

Good day to you.

I take this back because I haven't seen so much action this late in Jan so I cannot help but daytrade while studying lol

My portfolio is 100% VOO so I have been watching it decline the last few weeks (so I bought some more shares) and now it's starting another uphill rise so that's cool. But to be honest these little swings mean nothing, I'm holding for multiple years so that I can watch it double and triple.

I believe this post is meant for the crypto section.

Well 100% in a market fund is fine. Actually a solid long-term investment (min 10 years). But do you ever grab individual company stocks?

Well in that case, what do you gentleman think about VTI vs VOO this year?

Yeah that's great I'll be 42 in 10 years which might be when I start pulling out dividend payments and actually using some of my money. I've done a lot of single stock trading in the past and it never seems to be worth the gains/losses nor the time and effort involved so imma keep it simple now. But I did just buy a few TRUMP coins this morning because yolo heheheh.
