I have plans with family and friends for New Years Eve & Day. For NY Eve we're having a big bonfire at a friends house for the NY's Eve party. Then on NY's Day we have a family dinner planned with all the extended family & the kiddos. We had to get folding chairs so there would be enough seating lol, this year is much larger than last years.

Oh and xmas was great, family I barely ever see flew out for the holiday this year. Was really nice having everyone together for once.

Going to a party at a friend's house, but as I'm in my 30s sometimes I think that staying at home and sleeping well instead of drinking alcohol and going back to home late is also a good option.

What about you ?

I probably wont do anything for the new year except maybe watch the ball drop and call it a night

I am trying to keep it as simple as possible. I have a surgery comming next week, I'm trying to delay it as much as possible. As it's my eye surgery and it will cost well over 5K which sucks atm during the new year. And I'll have to skip any mobile, display, work, driving etc for atleast a week and keep my eye at rest so I'm really trying to avoid it atm but need to get it done as eyes are the life, imo.
