Hello. I'm currently trying to get the knot with kali and beginning struggling with time spent in what I think are small details like checking the terminal history for typos, the main problem is th patience I need for improving my current skills, so, if any of you had the same problem and could deal with it, any advice? Thanks in advance!

You need to work every day, even if it's an hour or two, but you need constancy.

That said, to improve your Linux skills use a user-friendly Linux distro as your daily OS, first through a VM in case you make mistake you can just restore a snapshot, then as a dualboot.

I've made an excellent guide about how to start, everything you need to know is inside :
