Tomiko Itooka attributed her longevity to bananas and yogurt-like drinks

Tomiko Itooka, the world's oldest person, has died at 116. The title now passes to Inah Canabarro Lucas, a Brazilian nun just 16 days younger than Itooka.

Itooka, born on May 23, 1908 in Osaka, Japan, lived through two world wars and witnessed more than a century of history. An avid high school volleyball player in her youth, she later managed her husband's textile business during World War II. After being widowed in 1979, she embraced independence in Nara Prefecture and took up hiking, even climbing Mount Ontake twice.

Itooka was officially recognized as the world's oldest living person in August 2024 by Guinness World Records, following the death of 117-year-old Maria Branyas, according to the Gerontology Research Group. When she was told she was at the top of the World Supercentenarian Rankings List, she simply replied, "Thank you."

Itooka attributed her remarkable longevity to a diet rich in bananas and Calpis, a popular Japanese yogurt-flavored drink.

She is survived by her son, daughter, and five grandchildren.

She passed away peacefully on December 29, 2024, at a care home in Ashiya, Hyogo Prefecture, Japan. Local officials confirmed her death.

Don't think I personally want to live that long unless it is in an extremely good situation and my body hadn't completely fallen apart before then.

Well you need to be taken care of with physical therapy.

The only physical therapy I enjoy is in bed with my girl. :)

What did that little guy in Game of Thrones say.....

"In my own bed, at the age of 80, with a belly full of wine and a girl's mouth around my ck."

Ya that's perfect, How much do you think sex with patients happens at the hospital? After being there I find it to have some sort of intimate vibe to it, Life & Death, I kept getting aroused at all the young pretty sick girls. Is there something wrong with me? I couldn't stop talking to them, they had me on some heavy benzos and other stuff. I remember I told some girl she is one of the prettiest girls cause I can tell she dont wear makeup. She was like a red blushing. It was weird, like you could go to the ER and find a date weird....

Hmmm, can't say I went fishing at a hospital before, but then again I haven't had much hospital time in my life. But interesting way to find a date.
