The Joker - January 10, 2025, 8:04 pm

Aliens are 100% real. You can't claim that only earth is inhabited.

If anyone doesn't agree, PROVE.

The Nun - January 10, 2025, 8:45 pm

I agree. I can't wait until revelation day when the reality of it all becomes clear. (Created by God, of course. I am a nun, after all).

I don't know, many journalists make fun of this phenomenon and at the first presence in the sky they make a report about it. I also believe they exist, but I don't know.

I agree... it would be arrogant to think that the entire universe exists solely for us as humans.

Foxy Proxies Ltd - January 11, 2025, 12:14 am

While I agree that we surely cannot be the only entities in the universe, some kind of actual evidence would be nice.

BlackRock - January 11, 2025, 1:15 am

Ofcourse they exist. We know, based on testimonies, that the USA, Russia etc. are in possession of craft(s) with technology that we cannot replicate with our current technology.

I also believe that the ancient stories of people from the sky are extraterrestrials that visited earth in the past.

N604 - January 11, 2025, 1:51 am

I agree and do believe they're real. But here's a question to ponder — even if they are here, does it really matter? Would they even be 'aliens' in the way we imagine, or could they be humans from another world, perhaps from a parallel dimension or even travelers from our own future?

It feels like all possibilities are open until something concrete proves otherwise, right?

XtremeDiscount - January 11, 2025, 5:39 am

Of course they aren't going to show you a picture of an alien.

Just by looking at the YT thumbnail, something tells me not to take this guy seriously.
He's probably a part of the government's plan to keep the people occupied and thereby keep their attention focused elsewhere.

What's a "Human"? We are a species that evolved over millions of years based on prevailing living conditions on earth. Life forms on other planets may have to live in an entirely different living condition and therefore would be entirely different.

Example, if their planet has a temperature of 212°F, the life forms there would be accustomed to such hot temperature. If they come to earth, they may freeze to death because our climate would feel cold to them.

So, Yes. Until we see some solid proof, it's all speculation.

While they indicated that people had been harmed during these programs, they didn't specify if it was via an overt action from 'aliens' or if these engineers just got burned/crushed/etc during the course of their research on the craft.

While there are many reports from jet pilots stating the UAPs can disable the jet's offensive capabilities, I don't know of anyone claiming to be attacked. I think the biggest threat to airmen atm is just a midair collision.

If aliens can disable the offensive weapons of our aircraft, then maybe that's for the better. It prevents un-necessary attacks and provocations. As we are a war mongering nation, maybe the aliens already anticipated this and took preventative action.

Foxxxy Proxies Ltd - January 12, 2025, 2:15 pm

(Jan 12, 2025 02:52 PM)Virulentus Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Sure, and to have those capabilities, they would have to be a highly advanced species (or maybe humanoids) which would also explain how their ships are able to travel at such speeds and without emissions.

Also keep in mind that these UAPs are not only up in the air, they are also underwater.

I would expect their technology to be far superior than ours. Thats why we must make peace with them so they are more apt to share their things with us. But our politicians are hell bent on war and killing. If there is personal profit in something, then and only then, do you get the attention of a politician.

Then start by not giving any technology to a politician. Because you can rest assured all politicians will use anything gained for war.

But I do believe they're out there, though for them to come to us they'd have to be advanced beyond our imagination.

True they exist, many people were bare witnesses around the world, this topic is very interesting but i cannot talk about this deeper though not to spark some conspiracy accusations.

Ohh haha, since we are at this topic i have one anecdote, my grandpas sister lived in Germany and she was working for US embassy in capital city and she was extremely obsessed with aliens even she had a large picture of alien ships filmed.

So the most savage thing she stated was that when she leaves earth that she doesnt need to get buried but aliens will come to pick her up.

Nope, and I think it's rude people would imply this. I wasn't alone for my sightings and have people both in and out of my family & friend group that can corroborate. There are others in my state who have gone on record, including police officers, etc. It's not something I'm doubtful on, we know what we saw was 100% not like anything else currently public in our airspace.

We have 0 evidence of aliens.

We have plenty of evidence that a government or organization is capable of flight & technology & energy use that no government has publicly acknowledged they are capable of replicating.

Simply put, we know it's magnificent and a huge breakthrough scientifically. I don't know much else at this time.

Could have, but there is no evidence that a government has this technology.

What we saw was superior in all ways.

The ability for these craft to move at those speeds without tearing apart the frame of the craft itself suggests to me and many other witnesses that they must be capable of generating a field. Within this field they can negate or ignore normal gravitational effects. The abilities I saw included zipping across the entire blue, clear sky as a bright ball of light. It stopped, hovered, and changed direction completely at the same speed. It didn't take any time to accelerate or decelerate. It just stopped and started as if space and speed were nothing but a fake obstacle that only our more primitive planes have to deal with. Any craft any government publicly has would've been torn apart by the physics of the momentum and physical stop - and incapable of even reaching the speeds and abilities we witnessed on a few separate occasions.

I say we have 0 evidence it's aliens. I also have 0 evidence it's made by humans. I can only share what we saw and hope that is enough. We still struggle to understand what or who it was in our sightings.

If you look at every single society from the dawn of civilization they have had one thing in common; they all looked to the stars and believed we came from ancient being's that literally placed us here. This is exactly how whistle blowers are discredited.

Let's think about those monolithic structures and huge monuments such as the Pyramids and how ancient people were able to move rocks weighing several tonnes and cut them with extreme precision thousands of years ago.

Almost all these structures were built around 5000 years ago. How did people all over the world get the technology and thought to build such giant structures at the same period when there was 0 communication between them?

Where did those builders go? Why did civilizations with such technologies disappear without a trace?

Did they die from a worldwide plague or did they leave earth and go back to their home planet?

Did they die from a worldwide plague or did they leave earth and go back to their home planet? There is plenty of evidence about the builders at Giza. They were not slaves, rather they were paid, skilled workers. As for the technology across other civilizations it's just a natural progression, one discovery leading to another. It's not hard to see that a pyramid is an extremely stable structure comparatively speaking.

Also the Egyptians were whicked smart. The gave us so much.

I've heard about this stuff but if you have any cool declassified shit about this pls send my way

Damn straight they're real! How could they not be? We're merely a grain of sand in the universe.

jujuju - August 31, 2025, 6:35 pm

If aliens are really out there, my only request is that they teach me one thing—how come they've hidden for years without being found, while my mom finds my stashed snacks in three minutes!

zeuz13 - September 1, 2025, 6:01 am

True! I watch a lot of "Ancient Aliens" ?

Wendy_Hacker - September 1, 2025, 7:18 am

I believe we are not the only one in this planet of courses. The government have been hiding a lot of informations from us.

fawfgaw - September 1, 2025, 7:18 am

I mean ofcourse they are real...

SIM-5690428 - September 3, 2025, 1:38 am

Aliens are real for sure, I wish we can see them in our life time

I want to believe, but EVERY time there's a new discovery it fades out. Jeremy Corbell and George Knapp are two of the worst bullshit artists in the field. Like the Laurel and Hardy of UFO research.

With so many planets out there isn't almost impossible for us to be the only one right?

I mean what are the odds of that really happening.

I would strongly agree if there was a bit of proof. I mean, nobody can hide something for so long..
