When is the best time to update? Now? Hold off for a few more months?

I have a desktop that will run it.. just never updated..

Now probably to get it out the way. I'm running 11 on my systems and have been for awhile now with no issues.

Because Microsoft wants to know everything about you ? they added a shit ton of telemtry suff and built-in ads in W11.

If you choose to update I think you'll not encounter major issues, just be sure to not update to 25h1 when it will be released, there are often problems with Windows updates ... Windows 11 is mature but I always recommend to wait a month or two before semi-annual updates.

It's the world of telemetry and not tech ?

Tech is something you like, and devs like creating it but marketers want the data?? what's tech? what's with your feelings/passion towards tech? smh

It's the marketers world, long before there was barter system, wars and computers.

Jf you can fun it you might as well. I've been running windows no problem. The only I dislike is them doubling settings locations of things like sound and display.

Well, that depends... What's your CPU model again? Just, you know, for research purposes.. ? (joking..)

Always update. DO NOT skip out on your security, or one day you will find out the hard way.

? Not a wise thing to do. Do not show people, (especially on this forum, you never know who's creepin) you're private information. Major OPSEC risk my friend. I'd be careful if I where you. It was just a joke. I thought I made that clear with the "?"...
