My fear is the Hackers becomes president and finally eradicates all the nazis. But then realizes it was a bunch of deaf people doing sign language.

You have a great sense of humor... XD

So.. I own 2 tarantulas and a widow spider, I free handle wild spiders at work, even widows. They're literally just misunderstood little creatures and I love them.

Heights are a hit or miss for me. Like, I can easily handle big rides and roller coasters, I can drive up and down a big mountain but I can't do ladders, I'll freak out if I look out the window on an incredibly tall building. It's weird. Like part of me is afraid of heights and another part of me isn't. I want to try skydiving.. the thought of it sounds incredible but also makes me very nervous.

I think my only true fear is losing people I really care about/am very close with.

Cleargravity - January 21, 2025, 5:43 pm

Death even though we know it's coming

RangoWorld - January 21, 2025, 6:19 pm

I haven't seen many big spiders. Heights I don't really fear but maybe I do more than spiders for the time being.

Rsynced - January 21, 2025, 8:24 pm

Heights would be more dangerous...

Spider is nothing, we have tons here outside in the forest.

This kind crawls on me often if I go into the deep forest:

It's safe, don't worry. Never hurt by one.

RootRXXT - January 22, 2025, 9:46 am

People always spiders or snakes etc etc... that's fair enough.. but lets go a bit darker and more deep... 100% of people don't want to die alone.

Think about it.

Yoko_ - January 22, 2025, 9:47 am

I'd rather eat a spider than jump out of a plane with no parachute, so heights ya.

I know, but that is how we all die in the end alone cause others are not dead. Maybe you will be with the other dead so you will have company. No one knows for sure!

I feel that the older i get, the more things i develop a fear of. Ive always lived my life with the philosophy that if its my time, it'll be my time. But as i grow older, i have picked up myself fearing the most random of things. On a serious note, my biggest fear is having to raise a child in the world society has created today. The world isn't all that bad, but the people who inhabit it can be.

Really feel that. I'm still in my younger years but damn time flies. Better enjoy it.

DarkVision - March 1, 2025, 1:52 am

Losing family members, loved animals included, used to be my biggest fear. Now that I have lived through it several times, I don't have any real fear anymore, other than a fear of heights.

Remember, your loved ones never pass away; they only pass on. ?

Crystal Lord - March 1, 2025, 2:38 pm

(Mar 1, 2025 03:30 PM)Virulent Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) In fairness it's not even the height or the fall that kills you.

It's that sudden stop at the end.

I had such dreams when i was younger kid, and the worst thing in fall dreams is the feeling when you fall on the ground and i expected it always to be the same thing, its not a pain but heavy feel like sudden twitch.

SoulZeh - March 1, 2025, 2:43 pm

House fire, been my biggest freak for as long as I can remember, I turn literally every socket off at the wall I'm that paranoid.
