

Forum: Hack Forums

Thread: Thread Reporting Period

Tyr - January 22, 2025, 7:11 am

Can we modify the time for this so that we can report posts that specifically relate to infected and/or backdoored links that have been uploaded by members? For example, a user recently tried to send me a malicious link as part of an ebook for me to look at and then closed his thread. I am unable to now warn other members that this skid is trying to spread malware on here to others in the form of a giveaway (as many are tbh).

Thread:

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=6289683&highlight=New+Year+Gift%22+Adult+Method%2A>

NOTE: Do not click anything this member sends you.

SoulZeh - January 22, 2025, 7:18 am

You could make a post or message an Admin/Staff/Mentor to inform them to remove the thread?

Let's be honest, there is a high chance one of them are on at all times.

Tyr - January 22, 2025, 7:20 am

Oh, I will. I just wanted to see if others were aware of this and make other people aware. My concern is that someone new to the site would hop on and end up getting bent over. Anyway. Problem will be dealt with shortly.

SoulZeh - January 22, 2025, 7:22 am

(Jan 22, 2025 08:20 AM)Tyr Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Oh, I will. I just wanted to see if others were aware of this and make other people aware. My concern is that someone new to the site would hop on and end up getting bent over. Anyway. Problem will be dealt with shortly.

I'd just say best bet is defo making other members aware on that thread and if people willingly click the click without reading through the posts, kinda on them until a Staff/Admin deals with it.

Tyr - January 22, 2025, 7:22 am

(Jan 22, 2025 08:22 AM)SoulZeh Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'd just say best bet is defo making other members aware on that thread and if people willingly click the click without reading through the posts, kinda on them until a Staff/Admin deals with it.

PM'd Bastille, closing thread now.

Omniscient - January 22, 2025, 9:27 am

No because how it is now is exactly how I want it. Idiots will report older thread or posts for shit that's not even a policy violation. If it goes 48 hours without being reported, it's very likely benign. And if you do indeed find something infected or must be removed, then yeah, contacting Staff is easy peazy.