

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: What do you think this is underwater off of California?

Hackers - January 26, 2025, 3:01 am

They say it is natural but it does look weird. It's not outlandish to consider a possible structure from ages ago under the sands.

Flan. - January 26, 2025, 9:56 am

Yeah, that does look pretty interesting. It's always cool to think about what could be hidden beneath the surface!

RootRXXT - January 26, 2025, 10:09 am

Fk man, I think there are some crazy structures hidden from public view

Hackers - January 26, 2025, 10:27 am

(Jan 26, 2025 10:56 AM)GoodDay2U Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yeah, that does look pretty interesting. It's always cool to think about what could be hidden beneath the surface!

(Jan 26, 2025 11:09 AM)RootRXXT Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Fk man, I think there are some crazy structures hidden from public view

Yeah definitely...

There are a lot of known places let alone all of the yet to be discovered places. Coastlines are pretty cool for archaeology ... a lot to still be done.

Binance - January 26, 2025, 10:31 am

It's clearly the water temple

<https://www.zeldadungeon.net/ocarina-of-time-walkthrough/water-temple/>

Hackers - January 26, 2025, 10:37 am

(Jan 26, 2025 11:31 AM)Binance Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It's clearly the water temple

<https://www.zeldadungeon.net/ocarina-of-time-walkthrough/water-temple/>

Praise be

Blessed be the fruit

Flan. - January 28, 2025, 5:58 am

That's pretty intriguing! It does look like it could be more than just a natural formation. Would be cool to see what they find underneath the sands.

HmmYeahNo - January 28, 2025, 12:22 pm

Tbh dude it's probably a sick underwater cliff. Not sure how big it is exactly but it looks too big to be man made in my opinion.