

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Trump plans to impose extreme sanctions & tariffs on Columbia for refusing deportees

Hackers - January 26, 2025, 11:28 am

<https://www.cbc.ca/news/world/trump-colombia-migrant-repatriation-flights-1.7442038>

Trump vows to impose heavy U.S. sanctions, tariffs on Colombia after it turns away deportation planes

Colombia condemns use of military planes, suggesting it treats migrants like criminals

President Donald Trump on Sunday said the U.S. would impose wide-ranging sanctions and impose tariffs against Colombia over its refusal to accept U.S. military aircraft with migrants being deported.

In a post on Truth Social, Trump said the United States would slap emergency 25 per cent tariffs on all Colombian goods coming into the United States and would raise that to 50 per cent in one week.

Colombia on Sunday turned away two U.S. military planes with migrants being deported as part of Trump's immigration crackdown, a U.S. official said, in at least the second case of a Latin American nation refusing U.S. military deportation flights.

Colombian President Gustavo Petro condemned the practice, suggesting it treated migrants like criminals. In a post on social media platform X, Petro said Colombia would welcome home deported migrants on civilian planes, saying they should be treated with dignity and respect.

Colombia's decision follows one by Mexico, which also refused a request last week to let a U.S. military aircraft land with migrants.

Petro's comments add to the growing chorus of discontent in Latin America as Trump's week-old administration starts mobilizing for mass deportations.

The use of U.S. military aircraft to carry out deportation flights is part of the Pentagon's response to Trump's national emergency declaration on immigration on Monday.

In the past, U.S. military aircraft have been used to relocate individuals from one country to another, such as during the U.S. withdrawal from Afghanistan in 2021.

Bastille - January 26, 2025, 5:01 pm

He's right, that's enough of handling other countries' problems. The same thing happens in France—Algeria refuses to take back its rapists and terrorists we're deporting.

We can't help the entire world; they need to do their part of th job and evolve.

Hackers - January 26, 2025, 5:09 pm

(Jan 26, 2025 06:01 PM)Bastille Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) He's right, that's enough of handling other countries' problems. The same thing happens in France—Algeria refuses to take back its rapists and terrorists we're deporting.

We can't help the entire world; they need to do their part of th job and evolve.

Ultimately it's a human rights violation if the countries deny entry to their own citizens. But they can legally turn away a military flight from USA.

We may need to find a way to allow the deportees to voluntarily enter regular flights to return home, under penalty of detention if they don't. That way they are voluntarily leaving, it's not a military flight, and the other country can't refuse entry as easily.

The Pact - January 27, 2025, 8:22 pm

If I were the leader of another country other than the USA, or a business owner doing significant business with the USA right now I would look for other options for fear of tariffs.

Hackers - January 27, 2025, 8:24 pm

(Jan 27, 2025 09:22 PM)The Pact Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) If I were the leader of another country other than the USA, or a business owner doing significant business with the USA right now I would look for other options for fear of tariffs.

Trump is like a child who is bad at asking for what he wants... just screams tariffs and then after a bit of back & forth he'll finally fess up to what he really wants and take back the tariff threat lol. Well, we'll see I suppose.

The Pact - January 27, 2025, 10:19 pm

(Jan 27, 2025 09:24 PM)nodes Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Trump is like a child who is bad at asking for what he wants... just screams tariffs and then after a bit of back & forth he'll finally fess up to what he really wants and take back the tariff threat lol. Well, we'll see I suppose.

Is it just some form of "ruthless businessman" strategy?