

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: File.io now powered by Limewire.com - throwback!

Hackers - January 26, 2025, 12:03 pm

Not sure if any of you noticed but File.io now uses Limewire

https://limewire.com/d/d76bdc26-41bc-4ff2-a321-c6071137a208#U0wfCU_mA0QZ2qxTzQp5o5SAKTmAnMUltN9YwJZzK_E

This is a video of Ross Ulbricht's first official announcement after being released from prison for what was the creation of Silk Road, a marketplace for drugs, hitmen, and more.

RootRXXT - January 26, 2025, 12:05 pm

Lol i remember the Limewire days... ahahaha ... had to reimage my machine more than once

Syndicate - January 26, 2025, 12:12 pm

Good god, not that PC cancerous website/program ??

Hackers - January 26, 2025, 12:13 pm

(Jan 26, 2025 01:12 PM)Syndicate Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Good god, not that PC cancerous website/program ??

Honestly it's an improvement over File.io ?

Klonopin - January 26, 2025, 2:23 pm

Good ol limewire

Bastille - January 26, 2025, 4:57 pm

eMule, Limewire, Shareaza .. ?

I miss those 90-00's vibes

Hackers - January 26, 2025, 5:05 pm

(Jan 26, 2025 05:57 PM)Bastille Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) eMule, Limewire, Shareaza .. ?

I miss those 90-00's vibes

Oh man what was that thing Kazaa or something ?

I remember Frostwire too temporarily

A lot of times I'd find manual links hosted on sites, and then people would use rshare or mega or similar

Mooooookie - January 26, 2025, 5:07 pm

I noticed this the other day. I wasn't sure if it had always been like that, or if it was something new.. Limewire was the shit back in the day.

RIP P2P

Hackers - January 26, 2025, 5:16 pm

(Jan 26, 2025 06:07 PM)Mooooookie Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I noticed this the other day. I wasn't sure if it had always been like that, or if it was something new.. Limewire was the shit back in the day.

RIP P2P

i wonder if it's permanent or if eventually File.io will just redirect to LW. I like that File.io has basic integrations you can use - I made a Telegram bot once that used them to create a custom download link per user.

I didn't realize Limewire had an easy to use web version like this for sharing though. I might just go straight to them in future .

Kaleb - January 26, 2025, 5:26 pm

I'm more interested in this token they're shilling.

Quote:LimeWire Token (LMWR)

LimeWire is Back

LimeWire is back! The iconic file-sharing platform from the 2000s made a major comeback in 2022, evolving into a cutting-edge ecosystem driven by AI and blockchain technology. The new LimeWire allows millions of users and businesses to securely create, upload, and share files of any size across all devices.

LMWR, LimeWire's native utility token, sits at the core of this revamped platform and powers essential parts of the LimeWire ecosystem. LMWR is used for payments and rewards across two key platforms: the LimeWire AI Platform, which enables seamless file sharing, content creation, and collaboration with advanced AI tools, as well as Blocknode, a decentralized GPU infrastructure (DePIN) marketplace that supports AI and computing tasks. With the help of LMWR, LimeWire and Blocknode are reshaping the future of digital content and decentralized computing.

I swear every company is just inserting AI as a buzzterm where they can to try to get money tossed. What utility of AI is needed in a file hosting website?